Ray,

I'm glad we're such good friends. Who cares if I ditched Suzanne at Etowanda to come here? - I don't. This year has been my best so far - even through everybody's arguing and stuff. I hope we can do a lot of things together this summer. You're one of the nicest and classiest guys I know and I'm glad we've been friends these last two years. See you at the Simple Minds concert.

Breaking Away

“Breaking Away” doesn’t mean complete separation, but enjoying a little freedom.

Etiwanda High School broke away from the nest of Chaffey’s campus this year, yet friends still kept bonds in tact.

We left the bustle of school for the weekends and holidays, only to return to Monday morning.

We developed individual tastes and styles but held on to friendships with people different than us.

We broke the monotony of the school say by participating in clubs and showing our spirit and pride at sporting events.

Seniors leave Chaffey’s halls to pursue their own lives. However, they keep in touch with good friends and favorite teachers.

Although the spirit of individuality was strong, there will always be an unbreakable bond holding us together.

Separate Ways

The hope of graduating is in the minds of all Seniors.

Seniors! A goal often easier hoped for than accomplished. The last year of school was seen in a variety of ways by each graduating student. However, one thing was common to all — senior year was definitely different than any other spent at Chaffey. As Wayne McEntyre said, "I am more aware of things than I was my previous years. I was taking it easy instead of concentrating on school and my future."

Some students found their last year to be quite easy. They were accustomed to the routine and knew what was expected of them. However, the majority of seniors were kept busy with jobs, homework and preparation for graduation. Numerous questions had to be asked and the responsibilities of applications, deadlines, and requirements for college were taken on. This wasn't always a situation ready to be tackled alone.

For students needed help — counselors, peer counselors, parents, teachers, and friends were ready to assist in any way possible. Other sources also proved to be quite helpful in making future decisions. R.O.P. classes gave students opportunities to explore various fields of interest, while Work Experience enabled students to make money in the working world and still attend school. Many times speakers from colleges were on campus to provide information that would help seniors in selecting the right institution.

After finding the appropriate answers and plans were made, seniors were more than ready to go on their own. Although each person went his separate way there will always be fond memories of Chaffey High School and its students.

Chaffey Leads the Way

Everyone knows Chaffey is old, but how old? Chaffey was the first school in the valley, big brother to all the rest. Chaffey sets the trends and leads the way.

In 1885 the first building on Chaffey's grounds opened as an agricultural college. It prospered for sixteen years until it was closed in 1901 when the Ontario High School District was formed. It was then called Ontario High.

The school didn't become Chaffey until 1911 when the Chaffey High School District was formed. Old CHS was the lone school in the valley for forty-three years. In 1952 the Fontana School District and Fontana High opened, the second in the valley.

Three years later, a second school in the Chaffey District opened. It was Upland High, first opened in September of 1955. It was followed in 1959 by Montclair High, first called Monte Vista.

In 1961 plans went into effect for Comprehensive High School

No. 4, Hillside High. When it opened in 1963 the name was changed to Alta Loma. It was followed by Ontario High in 1967.

This year marked the opening of the sixth school in the Chaffey District, Etiwanda High. We shared our campus with them for three months, until January, following Christmas vacation.

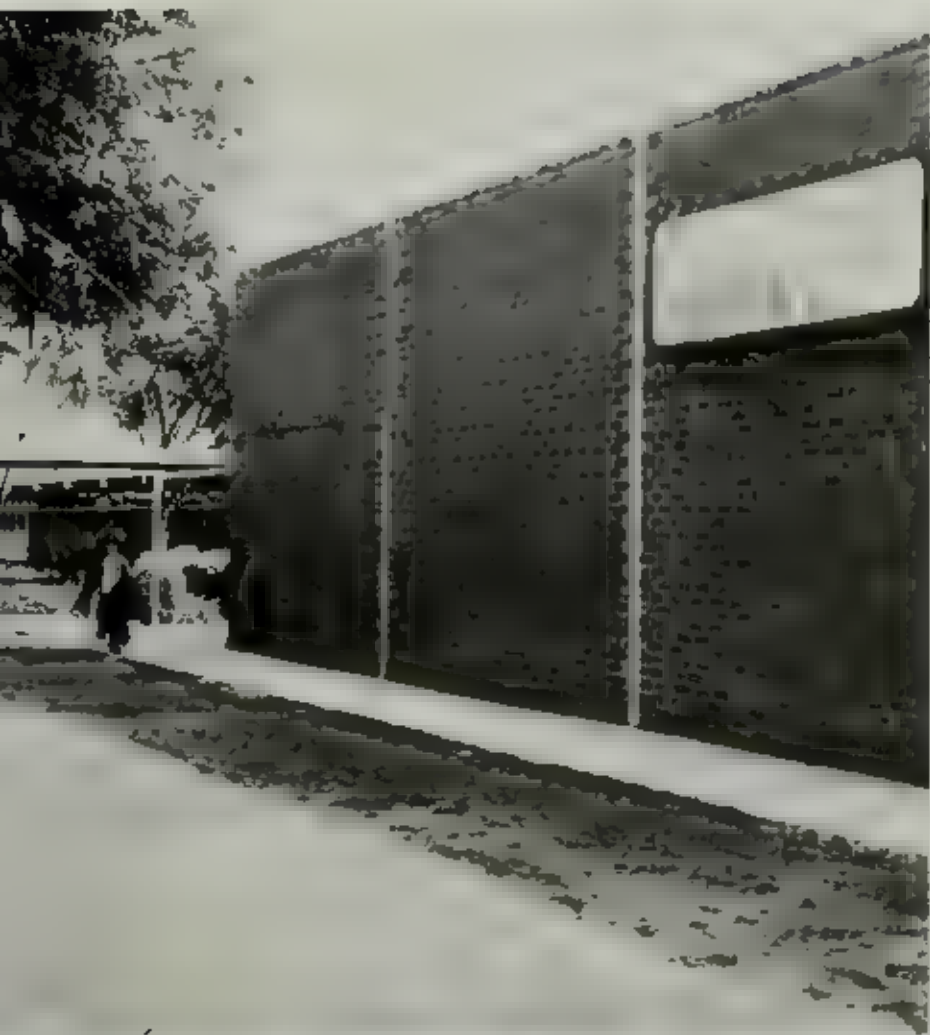

Chaffey has seen a lot in her seventy-three years. She will always have our support and we will always have our pride.

T.G.I.F.

Thank God it's Friday!" was an often heard statement from Chaffey students. Everyone counted down the minutes until we left our homes and escaped to our homes for a little "rest and relaxation."

It was difficult to believe we could be anxious to attend school. Yes, hard to believe we could actually tear ourselves away from our daily soap operas and cartoons. How could we ever live without 13 hours of sleep? The thought of not going to the beach or mountains every day was almost unbearable. Yet, as Kelli Connely stated . . . "I was really looking forward to seeing all my friends that I missed over the summer."

When the 7:35 bell rang, and two essays were due the next day, we stopped to wonder how much we wanted to see our friends. Well, we always had the weekends . . . and what weekends they were!

How we ever managed to fit a week full of activities into two days was a mastered skill. There were football games to attend including the Homecoming game and the infamous Spirit night. After-game dances always attracted a great number. Post-dance activities included crowds at local restaurants throughout the city. Carl's Jr. and McDonald's were well known for attracting spirited Chaffey students.

Although school had its definite advantages, one could not help but look forward to the weekend, even if they were often more strenuous than the week itself.

Divided We Stand

Not everyone can belong to every club on campus or participate in every activity or sport. That is why we find activities that hold our special interest.

Chaffey had a variety of activities to choose from. Whether it be baseball, foreign language, services, or dance — it had a place on Chaffey's campus.

What made these activities worthwhile was the people who participated in them. Each person had their own capabilities and ideas. Stacey King expressed, "Being in Student Government allowed me to experience other people's views which influenced my own opinions."

Being involved in activities broadened our knowledge of the outside world and gave us experience to be used later in life. While learning new skills, we also learned to enjoy ourselves along the way. Mecha and other clubs found bake sales to be profitable, while NESC found trips to Joshua Tree and Yosemite not only exciting but also very educational.

Seemed to be the Chatley motto. With all the new fashions, music, and hairstyles, this year was more original than any before it. Instead of following the crowd, we broke away from that "pre-packaged" look and went our own ways and did our own things.

The "in" look was dressing to your music. The campus was speckled with "new-romantics," "rockers," "reggae's," "punkers," "mods," and "rock-a-billies." Of course, Chaffey was not without its common folk, those students who chose to dress conservatively.

Although we were individuals, Chaffey will never be a school of loners. We congregated at lunch, games, and in classes. "Lunch time is more than eating," said junior Jackie Bishop, "it gives me a chance to be with my friends."

As unique as we were, we did not remain without influence. We took the pieces of "style" which we liked to form our own style. It seemed that, more than anything, we wanted to be comfortable with ourselves.

Newsbreak

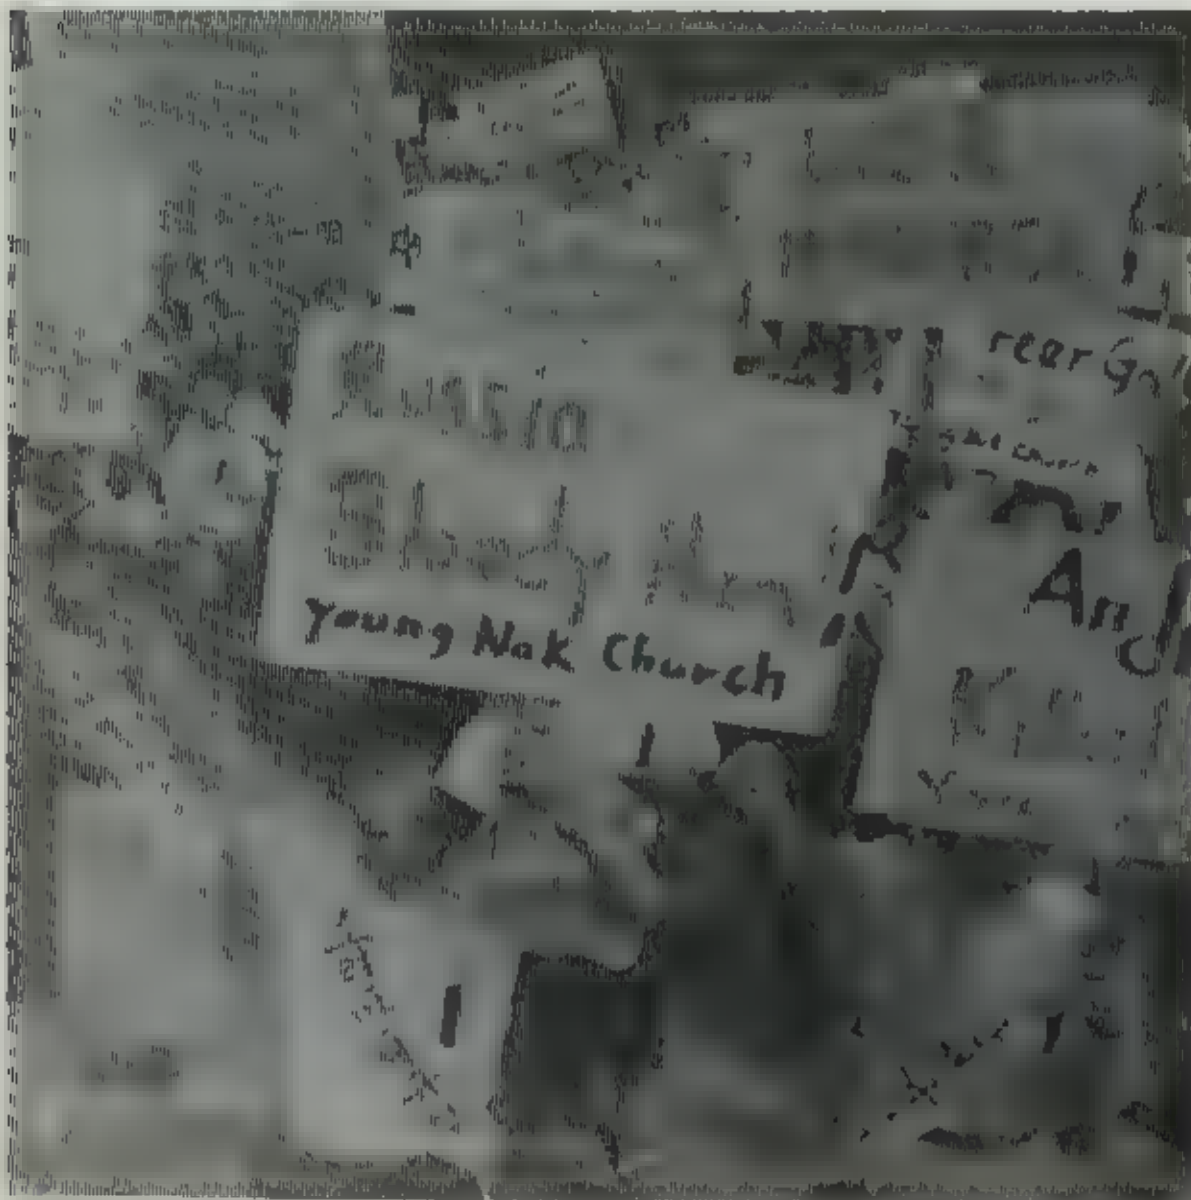

National and world events touch us all. Chaffey was no exception this year or any other. However, the events of 1984 had an especially great impact on us

We were all shocked, upset and enraged when Russian fighters shot down Korean Airlines flight 007, killing 269 innocent passengers. They had been tailing the 747 for two hours before destroying it over Sakhalin Island in Soviet territory. The assault sent Americans into protest. Many plans of action were suggested, from boycotting wheat exportation to refusing to allow Soviets to compete in the Olympics ... Speaking of the Olympics, they're coming this summer! Enthusiasm was high and so were our hopes of winning the gold. Plans were in effect to prepare the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum for the big event. Already the production of Olympics merchandise is big business ... Quite a bit of controversy arose from the bombing of Marine headquarters in Lebanon. The explosion killed 234 American servicemen. This attack began to make us all wary of the possibilities of war ... The implication of war was also left when two-thousand troops of the American Army invaded Grenada. The invasion followed the assassination of the Grenadan prime-minister and a take over by the communist party. We were joined by three-hundred troops from other countries, including Jamaica and Barbados

... Pride filled the halls of the Kennedy Space Center when they sent up the first American black and woman astronauts. Guion S. Bluford and Sally Ride were proud contributors to our advancing space program ... Another first was the crowning of Vanessa Williams. She was the first black Miss America in the history of the competition.

Although these events affected us greatly, there will be many more which will be significant in our lives. Perhaps future events will prove so extreme as to make us forget those of this year. Certainly as the years dwindle away they will seem much more minute, as they are reduced to memories.

Adele's love of the Dodgers and Chaffey is well displayed by her bulletin board.

Her school spirit rivaled even the most spirited seniors. Her loyalty to Chaffey was matched only by her loyalty to the Dodgers. Her bright smile offered warm salutations to anyone and everyone she saw, even those she didn't know, which were a rare few. Never did we hear angry words escape her lips, and it was extremely rare that she wore a frown on her face. Being ashamed of her braces never kept her from flashing her bright cheery smiles.

Every club and group on campus had her support just for the asking. This went especially for "S Club" for whom she was assistant advisor. Rarely did she miss a Chaffey game, we could depend on seeing her rooting on the team from the sidelines.

Conversations with her were always lively. She was renowned for her humor and her humorous quips and quotes. A few words from her could lighten someone's day.

Despite her effervescent personality, she was dedicated to her work and never left her post. She knew all about Chaffey's internal operations, and all the happenings on campus. She became the woman behind the school, as she took on, and beat even the toughest problems.

For the past eleven years of her service, Chaffey has known a friend and a happy face.

The Senior Cabinet worked on promoting spirit and unity among the students. Throughout campus activities they could be seen cheering on and organizing all that took place.

The Senior Cabinet sponsored many activities which included the "Terrific Twosomes" backwards dance and the Jr./Sr. Prom entitled "Time Will Reveal" which was held at the Red Lion Inn.

Advisors to the Senior Cabinet were Phil Goswiler, Donna Piquet, Bob Godinez, Judy Rupert, and Joe Reynaga.

Class of 1984

Finally Breaking Away

Our Senior year had come, and without any warning, it disappeared before our very eyes. After all of the years of waiting and endless anxiety, time flew faster than we had ever imagined. Before we knew it, it was all over and there was nothing except a lifetime of memories to look back upon.

When we entered Chaffey we were all a bit naive. Now it is apparent how silly all of these freshman pranks were, but if we had to do it over again nothing would change. The friends that we made and the fun that we had could never be replaced by anything.

Over the years, the Class of 1984 became united and acted not as a bunch of separate cliques, but as one unit of spirit and friendship. Through rallies and sports events we could be heard shouting for our class and working to win various competitions. Though we didn't secure the Spirit Trophy, we proved that we had more spirit and more pride than any of the other classes could have hoped to achieve.

Four years had presented us with many opportunities to make new relationships and friendships. In some cases, it was also a time for old friends to realize that they needed a change. We still had the same feelings, but we had to face the fact that we were growing up and most likely would be going our separate ways.

During our senior year it seemed as if we were always trying to break away from something. Parents and school often dominated our lives to a breaking point. Many couldn't handle it, but the majority pushed on to continue work for graduation... the ceremony and the diploma.

When everything had finally come to an end, it was as if we did indeed break away. There was a new sense of freedom, more room to breathe, and a lot of responsibility. We broke away from our way of life as it had been for the past twelve years. It was all so new and at times somewhat frightening. Where had all the time gone? It was over. We, the Class of 1984, had in a way, completed one chapter in our lives, but we would carry the memories and the pride of Chaffey High School with us forever.

Oh, No, It's Friday!

Paula Tilmant seems to be quite intent in her test.

No matter what classes students took they rarely slid by without having tests. From Trigonometry to Beginning Art Color students either took written exams or got graded on art projects.

Friday, was always a popular day for tests; however, too many teachers often gave tests on the same day. So it was not uncommon for students to have three tests on the same day. Most students lasted through those dreaded Fridays by thinking about the upcoming weekend.

In one way or another most of us did some studying whether it was between classes or all night long. Others didn't need to study, or they "prepared" for their tests by writing the answers on their hands.

No matter how well students prepared, when they received their tests many thought to themselves, "Help.!"

The Same Time Every Year

Sickness!

Every year the same things happen. January came along and the following changes took place: freshman finally started to "settle down," sophomores began to act mature, juniors started looking ahead to their senior year and the normal, happy, healthy senior was attacked by "SENIORITIS."

This illness was immediately identified. First, one noticed the unattentiveness (I'm bored, bored, bored!) then came the forging of absence notes (those lucky 18-year olds could clear themselves!) and lastly came amnesia (Test? What test?). Instead of being in school, the seniors wandered off to the beach, a party or many of us just stayed at home and slept.

Watch out class of 1985; No One is immune to Senioritis!

Attention All Students!

As it had been in previous years, the boiler room was a major place of advertisement for the school year. It served as an open display to attract attention from the media that was made up of students and staff.

On any given morning, news could be seen announcing activities and often times, words of "wisdom" from unknown authors were painted boldly across the walls for all to see.

The Class of 1984 used the boiler room to their advantage. Though a stiff fine of $2,000 was set out for all vandals, the seniors dared to make everyone aware of their presence and in a way carried on another one of Chaffey's traditions that is still going strong.

One of the most asked questions the seniors get is, "What are you going to do after you finish high school?"

Most seniors said that they were going to college and get a better education so that they could become doctors and lawyers, and become rich

Some seniors decided to join the Army or the Air Force so they could come to our country's rescue whenever they were called for. One could easily identify these seniors because of their crew cuts.

Still, other seniors decided that they wanted to get married, have tons of babies and live happily ever after.

Whatever CHS seniors decide to do, one never knows perhaps that guy (or even girl) who sat across the row in English will become President of the U.S. someday or that shy girl in Beginning Drama could be the next Marilyn Monroe. Whatever happens, we are provided with many opportunities.

The Grand Finale

One thing that seniors were pulling out their hair and chewing their fingernails over was the S.A.T. (Scholastic Aptitude Test).

First, they had to fill out an application just to make it possible to take the test. Many had signed up for classes at night to refresh their brains with facts and figures. When the big day finally arrived it took them three long, nerve-wracking hours to take the test and that wasn't the end.

Next, there was the long wait for the results which made many students nervous since a minimum score was required to be accepted into most colleges. For most though, it was well worth the trouble gone through to take the S.A.T.

5 Years of Night School!

All students who attended high school naturally assumed that they had committed themselves for 4 years, at the most. However, there seem to be some students who had the impression that high school was at least 5 years.

The first semester was the most popular for the returning grads. It seemed that since they had come to the same place for 4 straight years, it would be only natural to keep coming beyond the call of requirement.

Teachers as well as other students enjoyed seeing past graduates. The grads told about their hardships in college and on the job, and how much they missed everyone. The teachers were curious to find out how their past students were doing in college.

Boys' and Girls' of the Months

February

The Boys' and Girls' of the Month are chosen by a committee of staff members and select juniors. They are selected on the basis of academic achievement, school activities, and scholastic and community involvement.

April — Rachelle S

June — Sheila Maxson and Vince

Girl of the Year

Bridget Brennan — Bridget was chosen Girl of the Year because of her service to Chaffey High School, the Senior Class, Ontario Y.M.C.A., and several community organizations. During her senior year Bridget was a member of the Girls' Tennis Team, representative to Girls' State in Sacramento, Vice-President of the Senior Class, member of the yearbook staff, and has maintained a 3.9 gpa throughout her high school career. Chaffey was a better school because Bridget helped organized rallies, several dances including the Junior/Senior Prom, the annual Blood Drive, the annual Freshman Orientation, and she will graduate as a Life member of the California Scholarship Federation.

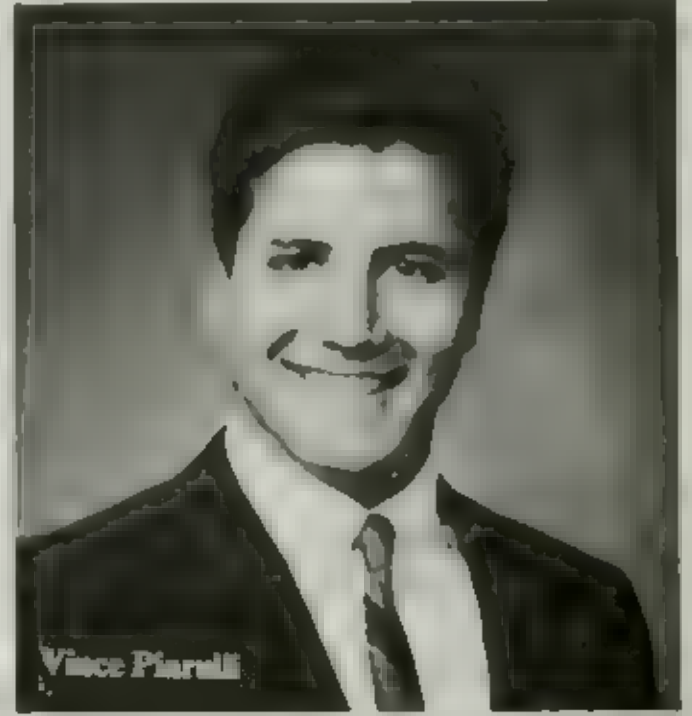

Boy of the Year

Tony Orona — Tony was chosen Boy of the Year because of his willingness to help unselfishly behind the scenes with many projects on the Chaffey campus for four years. These projects included Special Olympics three years, the annual Blood Drive three years, the Teacher Appreciation Program two years, Freshmen Orientation three years, Executive Council four years, Key Club three years including being chosen outstanding Key Club President in Division 15, the Peer Counseling Program two years, and many volunteer projects sponsored by the Ontario Kiwanis club. Few students attending Chaffey can match Tony's record of service.

Graduation Speakers

The three baccalaureate speakers, Tina Baty, Jeannie Bond and Vince Piarulli and the 1984 commencement speaker, Tony Orona were chosen by a judging committee, consisting of the Senior Cabinet and four teachers. The winning speeches were based on the ability of the speaker and the quality of the speeches. The speakers shared past experiences and expressed the hopes of all seniors for their futures.

Tony Orona

Seal Bearers

To qualify as a Seal Bearer was an honor received by few. The recipients had to be in the California Scholarship Federation for four semesters, with at least one during their senior year. These dedicated achievers received a gold seal on their diplomas and were entitled to life membership. Their gold tassels identified them at graduation.

Junior Cabinet

The Junior Class Cabinet enjoyed a very successful year. In addition to being responsible for the decorations at rallies, they were also sponsors of the Homecoming Dance held at the Ontario Civic Center. "Dancing By The Sea" was the theme of the dance and the turnout was excellent with 180 couples attending. It was the first time a disc jockey had been used at a couple's dance and the students response was very positive. The profit produced from the dance went into the cost of the Junior-Senior Prom.

Class of 1985, Breaking Up

For the class of 1985, the junior year was a time for making decisions. Every turn brought new perspectives into view. Sometimes, new ideas only caused problems, but at times they also helped out.

By the time we reached our junior year, we were expected to know where we were going and how we planned on getting there. Would college be the answer to all of the questions? If so, there was the PSAT, achievement tests, and endless interest surveys. There seemed to be no stopping the confusion.

If we were too busy to think about college or just didn't want to, we usually had jobs or were involved in clubs and extracurricular activities. The problem here was where to spend the free time: with homework, with friends, or taking the time to be alone.

At some point during the year, most of us felt a few symptoms of senioritis. These included being pushed out of the house, being drug into class, and being forced to push a pencil day after day. At times it all seemed useless, but we made it. We survived the breakup after all.

Keeping Physically Fit?

With the physical fitness craze of 1984, who needed physical education? Freshmen and sophomores, that's who! Fortunately, P.E. was not required of juniors. Few of the juniors lost any sleep over the matter. Memories of dressing out, crowded locker rooms, and smelly sneakers weren't very appealing. When we became juniors, we realized that we didn't need P.E. to keep us in shape; we had our own private exercise program at school with our special obstacle courses, walking exercises, barbells, and muscle toners.

Our obstacle courses consisted of freshmen, sophomores, seniors, and even our own kind! We couldn't go through these obstacles, we had to go around them. Next, we had our walking exercises. If we didn't have a car, we walked to school and practically everywhere else! Not to mention the amount of exercise we got from walking across campus, sometimes running in order to beat the tardy bell. Our barbells contributed to our muscle build-up. Our book bags may not have looked like barbells, but they sure felt like it! By the end of our school day we were walking a little off-balance. We must have spent a fortune replacing ripped back packs and torn bags. Our muscle toners involved climbing the stairs of North and South Hall and of the Math-Science building. These exercises developed the muscles of our thighs and calves. We also built up our gluteous maximus by the hours that we spent sitting behind our desks. Our fingers kept in shape by pushing our pen or pencil across a piece of paper.

If all of these activities didn't keep us physically fit, nothing would!

"We want you," demands Mr. T — oops! That's Wayne Morris and Jeff Brown.

Richard Beutter - The Human Computer

We all have seen a computer before and have heard the myth, "Computers never make mistakes". We have also heard the expression, "Nobody is perfect". How then was it possible for Richard Beutter to be a human computer?

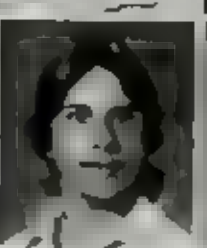

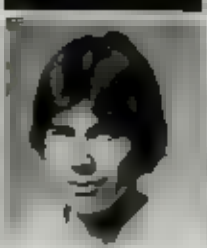

Richard has maintained a 4.0 G.P.A. for three years at Chaffey. Richard did not spend all of his time studying though. He also enjoyed such sports as jogging, raquetball, and lifting weights. Richard also spent time writing computer programs. On Richard's own computer he programmed a game called "Scandal". Can you guess what his favorite subject was? Computer science is the correct answer. Richard wishes to learn all that he can about the computer industry and hopes to design his own computer which would be called the "Beutter Computer". Richard certainly has all of the qualifications to be a human computer. Good luck to you Richard!

Friendship; Something to Cherish

Brian Sneed is caught off guard.

As the years passed by we came to meet new people. Some of them we liked, and some of them we disliked. Some influenced us in good ways and some in bad ways. As we met these people we grew. Not only physically, but mentally. The people that led us in the right direction were our friends. These friends were the ones that we had come to know since our freshman year or perhaps earlier.

High school seemed to have brought us closer. Maybe it was because we had more memorable times, both good and bad. As we grew older we shared our lives with each other and that seemed to draw us closer.

Friendship is what we had here at Chaffey. Even though there were different groups of different people there was still friendship among each other. Friendship is something to cherish for the rest of our lives and is something that will always stay in our hearts.

Lucy Minasso, Yvette Faiella, and Brenda Langowski prove that birds of a feather flock together.

Fun for All

► The audience continues to clap after the finishing pose of these dancers.

► The CSL Father/Daughter Banquet provided an opportunity for many fathers and their "little girls" to spend some time together.

Leaders of the Pack

Executive Council lead the way to a terrific year. Although they had a few changes to deal with, such as a new classroom in the student store and the loss of numerous students, they managed to survive another diligent year.

This past year they had an added task to their schedule: managing, buying and selling of candy and supplies in the student store. Tony Orona commented on the innovation, "I think it's great that students have the opportunity to be involved with this type of management. We literally saved the student store from bankruptcy." The council also participated in the annual blood drive in May, where approximately two hundred pints of blood were donated.

Once again, Executive Council excelled in their duties. Advisor, Gary Simpson, summed up the year by stating, "We have never had such enthusiasm at rallies and class competition events by the class of '84 at Chaffey."

The Activities Bunch

Activities Board was definitely a bunch this past year, that is, a hard working bunch. With more enthusiasm shown at rallies and dances than in past years, Activities Board had their hands full.

The class competition rallies were enjoyed so much that Adele Vinciguerra, the Activities secretary, stated, "This year's rallies by far have been the best I've ever attended in the eleven years I've been around. Everything was well thought out, ran the smoothest ever, and was spirit beyond compare!"

One new project that was started during the 1983-84 school year was the spirit parade held at the last home football game against Don Lugo. It seemed to bring out the best in everyone as Angela Shipley pointed out, "The spirit parade as I saw it, was another successful attempt by the Chaffey students to boost our school spirit. I'm sure that everyone who was there would agree that we, as students, are proud of our school."

Yes, the 1983-84 school year proved to be a very exciting and involving one, with the help of the Activities Board.

Hard Work Pays Off

Chaffey was one of the first high schools to establish the California Scholarship Federation, founded in 1921.

CSF is the high school version of Phi Beta Kappa. The requirements were high grades and enrollment in certain selected courses. Membership was obtained by acceptance of application.

Lifetime membership in CSF enabled a person to have a Gold Seal on their diploma and made them eligible for numerous scholarships. Sealbearers were honored with a gold tassel on their graduation cap. One became a sealbearer by being a member of CSF for 4 semesters; one being in their senior year.

Ivy chain consisted of the top 30-35 girls of the junior class with the highest academic standing. These girls formed the honor chain in which the senior class walked during graduation. Bridget Brennan stated, "I was proud to be a part of the 1983 Ivy Chain because it made me realize that all of the struggling and hard work to be one of the top of the junior class was worthwhile."

4,150 Miles Away

The United States ... a far destination for the Foreign Exchange students.

Alicia Planells came from her home town of Valencia, Spain to the United States during the summer. She says her school differs a lot from Chaffey. Seven classes are required each day for Alicia in Spain, while nine subjects are assigned to her.

Alicia's weekends in Europe usually consist of going to her mountain cabin where her horses are, and dancing at night in the discos. During her school hours here, she was involved with tennis, the Spanish club, NESC, and was president of AFS.

From Gothenburg, Sweden, Johan Hampf came to the state of California. He mentioned that his school system was different because he doesn't have the same schedule for every day, studying from between 10 to 15 different subjects.

Johan was involved with Activities Board, and he enjoyed tennis, soccer, golf, and skiing as his hobbies.

Altogether it was a very enjoyable year for Alicia and Johan here at Chaffey. We wish them much luck and success when they return to their homelands.

A Union of Helpers

The Chaffey Service League was made up of eleven girls with a desire to serve their school. During the school year they planned the Father/Daughter banquet and the Mother/Daughter banquet. In December, they supported unfortunate people by promoting Welfare Week. Together they displayed a Christmas tree in the library, and supplied canned foods for the needy.

The CSL members were very helpful in supporting needed attention for the school throughout the year. The President, Arlene McMichael, felt, "CLS has been a good experience for all of us, not to mention fun."

Fathers Know Best

The Chaffey Service League presented another successful Father/Daughter Banquet during the 1983-84 school year. This night was intended for fathers and daughters to get together for dining, dancing, and taking pictures. For dinner, they enjoyed spaghetti with garlic bread, and cake for dessert.

Dancing entertainment was provided by the Night Blooming Jazz Men, which played "oldies, but goodies," and was led by Chet Jaegar. One of the members of CSL, Sheila Maxson, commented, "The banquet gave us an opportunity to have a night out alone with our fathers."

Fasti Staff:

It all started June 17, 1983. The planning of the 1984 Fasti yearbook was in progress. Throughout the summer the editors met to discuss and work out the problems that prevail when putting together a yearbook. They also went to a four day conference in Buena Park.

Headed by advisor Gary Simpson, Editor Sheila Maxson, Assistant Editor Angie Taylor, Activities Editor Marlene Vann, Sports Editor Vince Piarulli, and Class/Faculty Editor Rachelle Sedore, the staff had many responsibilities not only to the individual sections, but also to themselves. Only those people involved in the process of the Fasti could ever know the satisfaction of seeing the pictures they picked out, the layout they drew and the copy they wrote in print.

Small surprises the day of the deadline were always looming about the classroom located in the student store. "I've lost a picture!" "What happened to my copy?" were exclamations not of joy but of dismay. Somehow or another the staff managed to pick up the pieces of others shattered layouts.

When the day in April finally arrived, the day the last pages of the book were to be taken from our hands and put into the hands of our trustworthy representative Jane Kasel, we all sighed and said that even though things were tough, we'd do it all over again. Then we all thought back to all the pressure, strain and most of all the fun we had together and said to ourselves, "We've made it better, we are Buff!"

Expressions Through Art

“Art Club gives us a place to do our art, to be messy if we want to. We have all of the supplies needed to create what we want,” stated Lisa Palacios concerning Art Club. This club, with Michele Andrews as president and Mr. Van Dame as advisor, served as a student service club providing instruction, facilities, and a place to work.

Among the many talented and gifted art students at Chaffey, two were chosen as the most outstanding. One of these students was John Winfield who has won a Bank of America Certificate in art. John plans on attending Woodbury College, becoming a transfer student to Europe, and then making his career as a fashion designer. John replied that Calvin Klein has influenced him the most.

The other outstanding art student was Aradyne Trujillo. Aradyne became interested in art as a junior and replied that her mom, also an artist, has greatly influenced her. Aradyne has won three awards through the school. She commented, “I have found that art offers me an opportunity to express myself.”

Building Construction was one of the many Industrial Education classes that were held on campus. Building Construction met every day from 6:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. with advisor Mr. Herrera at 4534 Rud-sill Street in Montclair, the location of their site. There they constructed a 1450 square foot three bedroom, two bathroom house. The house has a solar water heater, storm windows, brick fire place, detached two car garage, micro-wave oven and built in appliances. Building Construction was responsible for the 85% of the house's construction and with the help of Cabinet Making and House Wiring it was finished in June.

Meeting every day from 6:35 to 9:35, with advisor Mr. Bertucci, Cabinet Making made and supplied cabinets for the student-built house. House wiring also helped with the construction of the house. They met every day from 6:30 to 8:30 a.m. at the construction site with teacher Mr. Zmolek. They also wired the amphi-theatre stage located under the locker complex.

V.I.C.A.: Vocational Industrial Clubs of America, gave vocational students a greater opportunity to demonstrate and improve their skills and become leaders in their field. V.I.C.A. met every Monday at different locations with advisor Mr. Bertucci. V.I.C.A. made money during their annual Christmas gift fundraiser by selling cutting boards and also participated in the regional and state skills Olympics and leadership confederation.

Forever Spirited

Growing to a 28 girl squad, the 1983-84 Drill Team provided spirited half time entertainment during our football games. Joined with Tall Flags and the Marching Band, the Drill Team competed in several tournaments and also helped host one of their own.

Headed by sergeants, Sarah Wantz, Tania Wall, Kelley Shamblin, and Delia Licea, the Drill Team worked throughout the summer and during sixth and seventh period to achieve the excellent performances they strived for. Their hard work was rewarded with a first place victory at the Colton Tournament of Bands and a second place trophy at the Azusa Tournament of Bands.

Although their hard work paid off for them throughout the year, it had its disadvantages. Freshman Carrie Day stated, "It's fun, but a lot of hard work. We seldom find time to do our homework."

Even though they had very little time for other activities, the Drill Team's spirit was, indeed, unbreakable. Their hard work and determination was well rewarded and that made for a successful year.

A Successful Separation

Separated from the Drill Team for a bigger variety of entertainment, the Color Guard proved to be successful. Led by sergeants, Stefanie Beckos, Kim Browning, Pat Gebhardt, and Kim Schnell, the Color Guard worked hard throughout the hot summer and during sixth and seventh periods. In addition to the Drill Team's awards and the Marching Bands trophies, the Color Guard won a first place award at the Colton tournament. Freshman Lorri Donley stated, "Our first place trophy showed our determination and hard work."

Although they were separated from the Drill Team, the Color Guard proved that they could be winners . . . and winners they were.

With four sweepstakes at the Colton Tournament for Marching, Music, Showmanship, and Percussion; two first places — one at the Azusa Tournament and one at the West Covina Tournament and the Outstanding Director award at the Colton Tournament, the Chaffey Tiger Marching Band amazed the other competing schools.

In October, the Tigers held their own tournament and were delighted when the audience gave them a standing ovation.

Besides attending tournaments, the band gave Chaffey inspiration during home football games and showed us their winning routine during halftime.

Other activities included the Holiday Fling and the 2000 Concert. Director Jack Mercer summed up this successful year with: "This has been one of the Chaffey Band's most spectacular years."

Lights, Camera, Action!

Lights! is the word that you would often hear Richard Nelson, director of the stage crew, cry if you happened to be passing by the stage door on any given school day. It didn't matter if there was an important performance that day or not. The stage crew was always a busy bunch. Made up of only four students, the stage crew kept themselves busy. Working to please directors of different activities such as modern dance and drama, the crew had responsibilities not only to the directors, but also to themselves. Each light and curtain direction was crucial for a good performance. The stage crew was also responsible for the sometimes elaborate back drops used for certain performances. The falling snow at the Holiday Fling was probably one of their most memorable creations.

Stage crew may not get much recognition from the students, but they all enjoy their work and do their best to make an "A-1" performance.

Another task of the crew is cleaning up as shown here by Eric Paulson.

"All the World's a Stage . . ."

The 6th period Play Production class worked long and hard first semester to present three one act plays that represented different aspects of the theatre world.

The first of these was a series of short skits by cartoonist John Fieffer entitled "Fieffer's People." These skits ranged from satirical comedy to theatre of the absurd. Each skit showed a different aspect of human nature.

"The Loveliest Afternoon of the Year" by John Guare was Play Productions attempt at theatre of the absurd. The play revolved around two characters given the basic names of He (Paul Mendoza) and She (Sharon Pula). He and She first meet when she is feeding pigeons in the park, and He asks she for the plastic favor at the bottom of the Crackerjacks box. From then on, the relationship becomes stranger. He tells her odd stories about his relatives, she wonders if he is not utterly mad. They discuss their relationship and, by a not-so-strange twist of fate, die at the hands of He's angry wife.

The third play was a storybook romantic comedy called "The Ugly Duckling" by A. A. Milne. The play concerns itself with the plans that have been made by the King and Queen (Jean-Paul Rosenveldt and Julie McKelvey) for Prince Simon (Eric Fagan) to marry their daughter, Princess Camilla (Carissa Mace). They are rather anxious because Camilla is held to be extremely plain. By a series of mistaken identities involving the beautiful maid (Lisa Felix) the handsome attendant (John Griffinth), and the Chancellor (Tony DeSalvo) the Prince and Princess eventually meet, find each other extremely beautiful and fall in love, and as the story goes . . . "All's well that ends well!"

Play Production

Acting's easy. Rehearsal's a snap. Performing's nothing. Mention these phrases to any member of Play Production and they'll look at you with an astonished stare. After devoting long and hard hours to the class second semester, these people know what the class is all about. These long hours were spent to achieve their goal of presenting a production of "The Imaginary Invalid" by Moliere that they could be proud of.

The plot of "The Imaginary Invalid" is not simple. Argan, a hypochondriac, is upset not only at his "imaginary" ailments, but at his many doctor bills. In order to obtain free medical care, he schemes to marry his daughter Angelica to a idiot named Thomas Diaforus, son of a famous doctor. Little does Argan know that Angelica is in love with a young man named Cleante. It remains for the inventive maid Toinette, with the help of Argan's sister Beralde, to prove to Argan that his wife only loves his money, the Diaforus pair are fools and that love should prevail. In the end, love triumphs over all and ailments, real and imaginary, are solved with laughter.

The class was more than just rehearsing and performing. Members of the class commented on what Play Production was like for them: Sharon Pula: "Working on different characters helped me to get to know myself better." Eric Fagan: "Rehearsals aren't always easy, but nothing rewarding ever is." Jean-Paul Rosenfeldt: "Performing for Chaffey students is ... different." Bart Coffman: "Play Pro. is more demanding than it appears to be."

The cast couldn't have achieved their goal without the help of their director Nelson Palmer, Assistant Director Eric Paulson and Props Manager John Griffith. Mr. Palmer stated his view of the class: "I really enjoy directing plays which give me an opportunity to invent slapstick action. This cast was easy to direct and they contributed a lot of good ideas to the production."

With the hard work put in by the cast and crew, "The Imaginary Invalid" proved to be a worthwhile experience for all.

Dancing to Success

Members of modern dance and Orchesis continued to lead the way in the world of dancing during the 1983-84 school year. These girls gave their all throughout every performance they participated in.

Members of Orchesis performed off campus for the first time. They not only danced for Upland Junior High School, but they proceeded to teach students in Upland's dance classes. Montclair High School and Edison Elementary also had the opportunity to see the Chaffey dancers.

Outstanding Senior Awards were awarded to those who excelled in their dancing abilities. Girls who received that award included Kymm Britton, Dawn Omorrow and Kathy Noel.

Overall, the school year proved to be very entertaining, thanks to these dedicated dancers.

Who Puts the Zing

As the remaining weeks before Christmas vacation crept along, most Chaffey students put their energy into Christmas shopping and preparing for the two weeks away from school. However, the performing arts students spent those weeks putting the zing into the Holiday Fling.

Starting the Holiday Fling with a musical salute to the holidays, the band under the direction of Jack Mercer, had acquired the christmas spirit. David Sparks stated, "I'm glad that we have a Holiday Fling because Christmas is a special time of year and we can celebrate it together."

Conductor Carl Walters and the choir kept the spirit alive with a few seasonal songs and a clever version of Jingle Bells throughout the years.

After working hard on the Modern Dance assembly, the dancers, with director Marian Miller, concentrated all of their energy on the Holiday Fling.

Throughout the years Mr. Palmer's Play Production class has entertained Chaffey students with a comical skit and this year was no exception. with their version of the Wizard of Oz, the class had the audience laughing at the crazy antics of the characters.

The Holiday Fling finished with the performers singing White Christmas. With Christmas close at hand, the Holiday Fling was a great way to start a vacation.

Pep Squad Makes It Great!

▽ Pep Commissioner Sharon Pula.

Every year the Pep Squad does their best to promote school spirit, and this past year was no exception. They made it great! Under the direction of pep commissioner Sharon Pula and advisor Janet Lehman, the Pep Squad put all their effort into rallies, football games, and basketball games in which their spirit always came out on top.

The Varsity cheerleaders and Songleaders cheered at the Varsity football and basketball games, both home and away. The Junior Varsity squad cheered at Frosh/Soph and J.V. football and basketball games and also sold programs and pom poms during the Varsity games.

The squad as a whole had a feeling of togetherness while performing in front of the school. Sharon Pula stated it best by saying, "It's a good feeling when you're out in front of a crowd cheering and the crowd cheers with you. It makes you feel like you're doing something worthwhile for the school."

Janet Lehman, in her second year as advisor, experienced a new change with the Pep Squad. The addition of a second mascot made it two "tigresses" on the squad — Denise Perez and Chris Garner.

Again, Pep Squad, "made it great" for the promotion of spirit at Chaffey High School.

Entertainment Was Unique During Homecoming Week

October 3-7 was a time to break away from the normal routine of school and enjoy a week of unique entertainment. It was Homecoming Week.

The Queen candidates amused us all by participating in several activities. The first of the week's events was the lunch time competition. Their job was to blow flour out of a pie pan to be the first to retrieve a lifesaver. The winners were Yvette Pelletier and Kymm Britton, respectively. The next form of entertainment to come our way was the Queen Rally. After the presentation of the candidates to the student body, an interesting little dating game was held. The candidates listened intensely as five "characters" answered various questions. The candidates then chose the one they wanted to have for "slave-for-day."

The finale of the week was the Friday night football game. The tension mounted in the stands as well as on Graber Field as the candidates were escorted onto the field.

Mascot Chris Garner warmly embraces Kim Donalds as she and Tim Christian enter the field in hopes of a victory. Δ

Mascots Chris Garner and Denise Perez along with the drill team, formed a line and swayed back and forth in front of the candidates. The tension broke and relief and joy filled the air as the mascots bowed to the new 1983-84 Homecoming Queen Lisa Bustos!

"Busy, full of excitement, overall fun, it was worth it," were Lisa Bustos' comments on what Homecoming week was like for her.

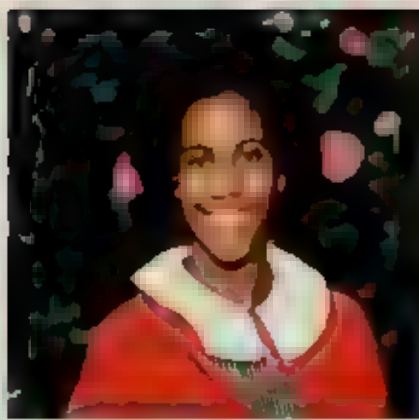

During her four years at Chafey, Lisa was greatly involved in school activities. She participated in the GATE program and Pep Club her Freshman and Sophomore years. Lisa was a member of NESC for three years and was vice-president of the club her Senior year. She was also a member of Latitude 25°. Lisa showed her spirit by having been a J.V. Cheerleader Sophomore year and Songleader her Junior year. Lisa was on Activities Board for two years and was ASB President her Senior year.

Intercultural Clubs

The MECHA Club of Chaffey High School was one of the most active clubs on campus. Besides running candidates for the Homecoming and Backwards Courts, the Club had also participated in all the food sales on campus. Along with being involved in on-campus activities MECHA has also organized softball teams. Some of the other activities that MECHA had been involved in was the Cinco De Mayo Week activities that consisted of a food sale, car show, assembly, fiesta, and a coronation dance.

MECHA'S purpose of organization was to develop an awareness of the Mexican culture for the school's student body. It's also a way in which Hispanic students could get involved within the school's activities, in which traditionally they were not involved. For MECHA, this was the start of making the Hispanic student a more active participant of Chaffey High School's student body.

Along with being involved with the activities board, B.S.U. also participated in the various food sales on campus. The club ran a candidate for the Homecoming Court. Members of the "Salty Dawg Jug Band" really get into the swing of things

It all started twenty-six years ago ... the Chaffey High School Biennial Faculty Show. With all the proceeds going for student scholarships, the many faculty members of C.H.S. and other schools in the district put on another hilariously funny show.

With such skits as the "Lite Root Beer Commercial", "Clash Dance", four "Class Competitions", the continuous "Running Gag", "The Used Teacher Lot", and the traditional "Chicken Dance", the performers as well as the audience had quite a bit of fun.

Also included in the show were musical and dance acts such as Chet Jaeger's Jazz Band, the opening and closing choral groups, "Class Notes", "Barber Shop Quartet", "Jug Band", "Strange Dances", the "Can-Can", "Stage Crew Strut", the latest in aerobics ... "Fame" choreographed by Mrs. Miller and a skit by Mr. Palmer.

The show was the 13th biennial and was directed by Mr. Chet Jaeger, a Chaffey Mathematics teacher. The idea began in 1957, in joining with the talents of Esther Hunt, they thought it would be a good idea to give the students a break from putting on an assembly, and have the faculty put one on instead. The persons involved had so much fun, that they decided to add an evening performance to their next show, which was two years later.

The exhibition proved that our favorite and not so favorite teachers were capable not only of teaching, but also of performing to heights of greatness. Whether it was the sweet voices of "Class Notes" or the wild tunes of the "Salty Dawg Jug Band," all that attended the gala performance were wild with enthusiasm and pleased with the performance.

The first rally of the year marked the beginning of the fight for the spirit trophy. With the spirit higher than ever before, each class had to work harder than ever to come out the winners. Quickly the seniors and the sophomores led the pack, with the juniors and the freshmen not far behind.

Elizabeth Donley explained, "It is as fun to watch as participate in because the four classes can compete against each other, which keeps the school alive and worth going to."

With such competitions as "the bobsled", "the tug-of-war", and "the balloon stomp," many people, spectators as well as competitors, found themselves cheering for their class and having a good time.

Not Just a Pretty Face

Nothing but the best: Adam Coletta, Johan Hampf, Chris Parks, Scott Pearson, and Vince Piarulli were elected to be the new king court for the year of 1984. Following the election, there were poster painting parties, a rally, a parade, and the king competition. The festivities continued throughout the week, with the election for king on Thursday, March 8th. During Backwards Week, mixed feelings were expressed. "Now I can finally sleep at night . . . at least until the next elections!" were Vince's feelings towards his candidacy for Backwards King. Scott, on the other hand, had a somewhat different attitude toward the situation, "It's been a great experience running with my friends. It's too bad there can't be five kings!!"

Who was the lucky candidate? On March 10th, the night was set aside to crown the 1984

Backwards King, Vince Piarulli! After a week of hard work and tension, it was a relief for everyone to finally find out who the king was. The student body picked a well-deserved candidate for position of king. Vince, during his four years at Chaffey, was involved with the Sophomore Football team for one year, Varsity football for two years, a year of J.V. soccer, varsity soccer for three years, Fasti Staff for two years as Sports Editor his senior year, and a member of Executive Council, the Spanish Club, NESC, and Intercultural Activities.

One of Chaffey's most "backward" traditions went underway, as Vince Piarulli received the title of king. For many years to come, this well-known tradition will be carried out by the classes of 85, 86, 87, and so on. The excitement rises again . . .

They Advertise Spirit

The main goal of the Pep Club was to promote school spirit along with the Pep Squad. The club was led by the new advisor, Adele Vinciguerra, who helped organize and produce their sales. During the school year, the Pep Club sold programs at the football games and other various items. The club met on Tuesdays at 2:30 when it was needed to discuss their activities throughout the week.

Adele Vinciguerra described the club as being, "an extension of the Pep Squad, and that they help to promote school spirit."

Students Helping Students

*M*any of the clubs that existed on Chaffey's Campus were designed to help students. Two such clubs were Maranatha and CSF also known as the California Scholarship Federation.

Maranatha was composed of a group of students that were interested in encouraging fellowship among Christians. The club met once a week during both lunches to share their faith, listen to guest speakers and discuss important issues. During the course of the year they participated in picnics, parties and helped at the Special Olympics.

Helping students in another way was CSF. CSF is not a club in the true sense of the word. To be a member one has to achieve a 3.0 grade point average. CSF met at least once per semester. The members served as volunteer tutors for other students. At the end of the year, many CSF members were the recipients of numerous awards and scholarships. The major event of the club was the Sealbearer banquet held in the spring, at which the Life Members were awarded gold pins.

Together these two clubs were members of a vast society of clubs that served Chaffey.

Foreign Affairs

No matter how different people appear to be, there is always something they have in common. This is true for the Foreign Exchange Club, Spanish Club, and French Club. Although their languages differed, their desire to learn about another culture was the same. The Foreign Exchange Club helped Chaffey's foreign exchange students learn more about American culture, while the Spanish and French Clubs promoted knowledge of each of their cultures. Each of the three clubs participated in fundraisers to raise money for various activities. Some of these included: sending students abroad to foreign countries, having a Cinco de Mayo celebration, watching french films and dining at a french restaurant. The French Club also wrote to pen pals from all over the world!

So no matter how near or far these countries are to us, the closeness of the people are the same. They want to share ideas and learn, and these clubs offered learning and sharing experiences of a lifetime!

"What are those supposed to be?" exclaims a Chaffey student on food sale day.

Service Is Their Business

Chaffey High School's service clubs were by far classic examples of students becoming more involved with school and community projects.

The groups consisted of the Key, Soroptimist, and a new formed club called the Keywanettes. All three clubs were constantly involved with school activities. The Soroptimist Club, also known as the "S" Club, volunteered their services to the Tournament of Bands, repaired toys at Santa Claus, Inc., and were "huggers" at the Special Olympics. Singing telegrams also kept members of the "S" Club very busy throughout the school year.

Members of the Key Club were primarily boys who were active with the West End Opera Association, ushering at their operas held in the GWS Auditorium. Art auctions were also on the group's schedule. They helped with the Kiwanis and the West End Boys' Club auctions.

Keywanettes was a newly formed club where students learned good citizenship and the development of leadership. As well as serving at luncheons, Keywanettes walked for the March of Dimes Walk-a-thon. These students also sponsored the winning Homecoming Queen, Lisa Bustos, in October.

Many clubs existed at Chaffey this past year, but the ones mentioned above gave their all throughout the 1983-84 school year. It would be hard to imagine what our campus and community would have been like without the help of these dedicated organizations.

"S" Club members, Paula Bring and Wendy Sheridan, listen to what is being said at one of many important meetings the club holds.

The Great Outdoors

This year at Chaffey there were three clubs who centered their activities on the great outdoors. Copernicans, Highwaymen, and NESCS. The Copernicans used the great outdoors by way of the sky to study astronomy. Advisor Dennis Wilbourn, tried to make studying astronomy interesting by taking four trips throughout the year to Griffith Park Observatory. Copernican members learned a lot and had fun doing it.

The Highwaymen were also a club that used the great outdoors to their advantage. They depended on good weather to make their bike trips possible. The Highwaymen, along with advisor Glenn Chappell, took monthly trips to various places such as San Dimas Park and Glen Helen Park, both more than twenty-five miles away.

NESCS would not have existed if there were no great outdoors. NESCS's main purpose was to observe and benefit nature. Club members and advisor Ted Reeves worked together to plan camping trips and hikes to Regional or National Parks. NESCS also planned fund raisers and gave to worthwhile organizations such as Greenpeace to benefit nature. NESCS also benefited our school by planting native oaks across campus.

Talent vs. Defeat

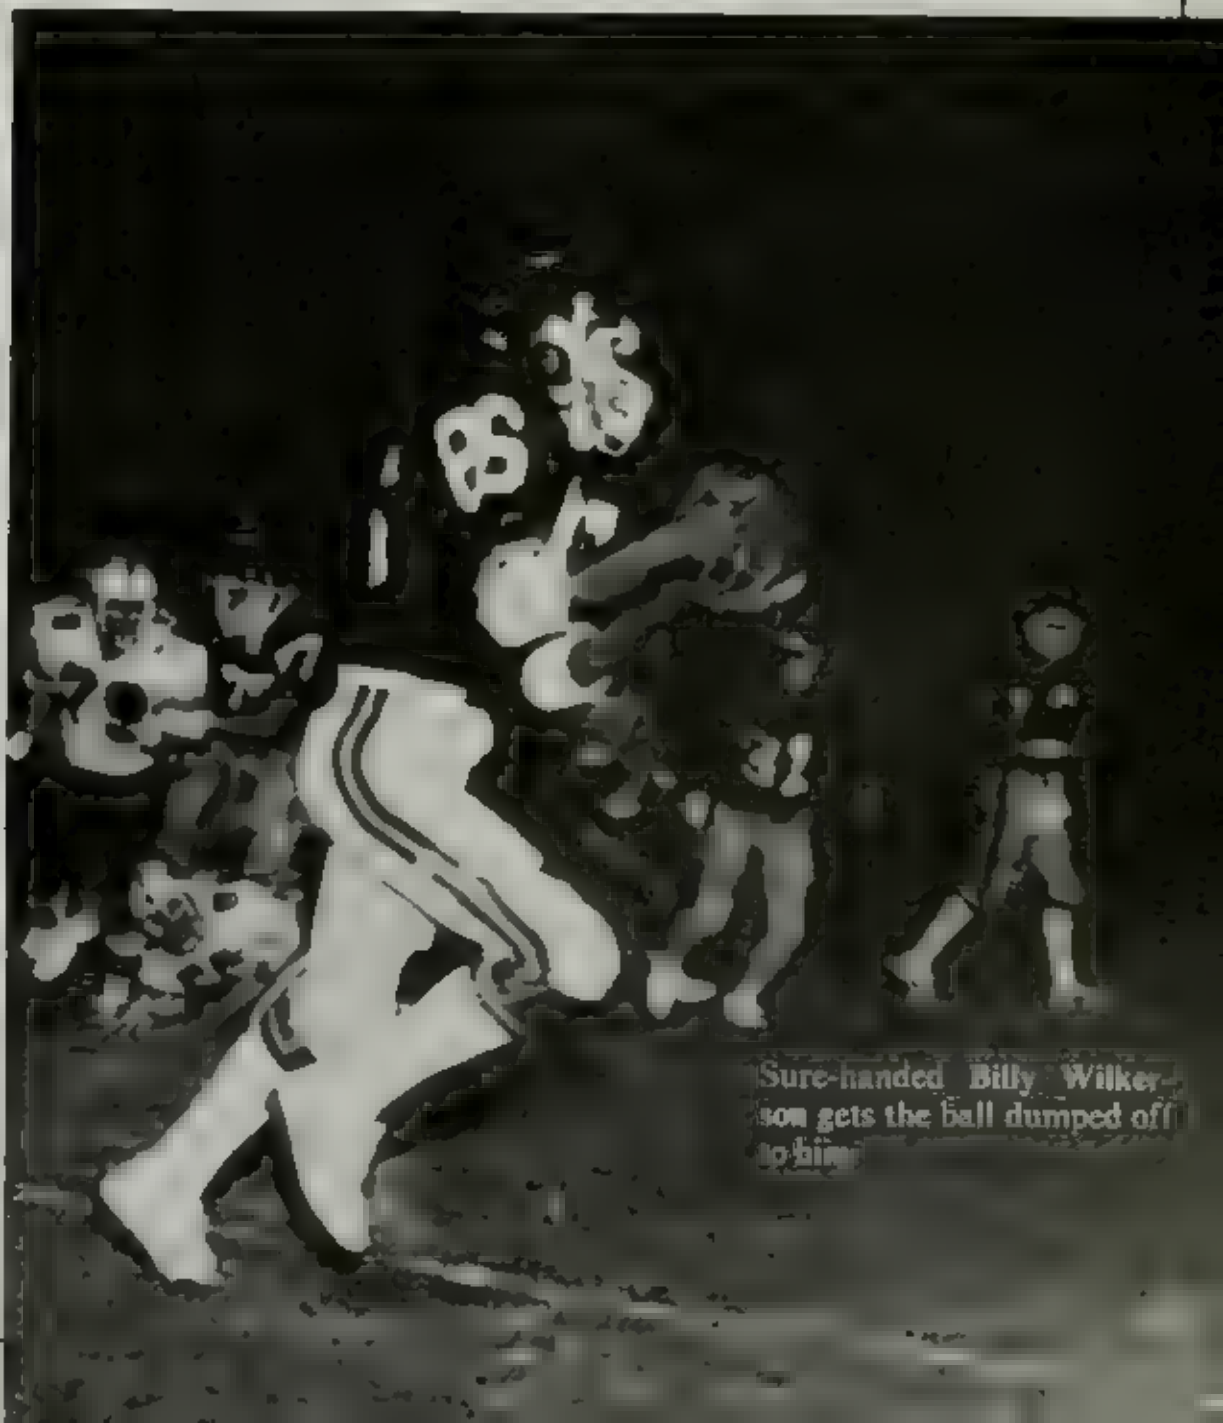

The feeling of anxiety mounts at the line of scrimmage, as Chaffey drives for a touchdown.

Spirits were high after pre-season non-win against Eisenhower and Redlands. A missed two-point conversion try for the win was the difference in the Nogales game. A better than 0 and 3 team entered Baseline League play with a strong defensive effort against Claremont. Key injuries in the Pomona contest destroyed a third quarter 20-7 lead and allowed Pomona a heart-breaking 21-20 victory which dampened Chaffey Homecoming festivities. Losses to arch-rivals, Damien and Upland, were followed by a long-awaited and well-deserved win over Alta Loma. However the taste of victory was short-lived, no match for powerhouses Glendora and Don Lugo. Although the season record does not testify to their talents, some of the most gifted athletes to ever wear the orange and black will be graduating. On a more positive note, some of the finest will also be returning.

Chaffey's Football Future

The 1983 sophomore football team experienced a very successful season finishing with an overall record of 6 wins and 3 losses and a league record of 4 wins and 2 losses which was sufficient for a second place finish in a very competitive league. The sophomores who play the J.V. league schedule were in a first place tie with Glendora before losing their final game of the year to Don Lugo 13-10 on a last quarter touchdown.

Outstanding players on this year's squad which was coached by Jim Reno and Bill Thornhill, were backs Randy Bybee, Rich Williamson and Lupio Hernandez. Exceptional wide receivers were Carl Campbell, Steve Watson, Dave Hawk, and Joe Porter.

Stellar line play was turned in by Rod Small, Ronnie Armenta, Joe Bills, Evan Guest, Scott Hudson, Larry Shoup, Hector Meza, Steve Schulz, John Chimbur, Eric Stager, Jack Delzell, and Mike Crawbuck.

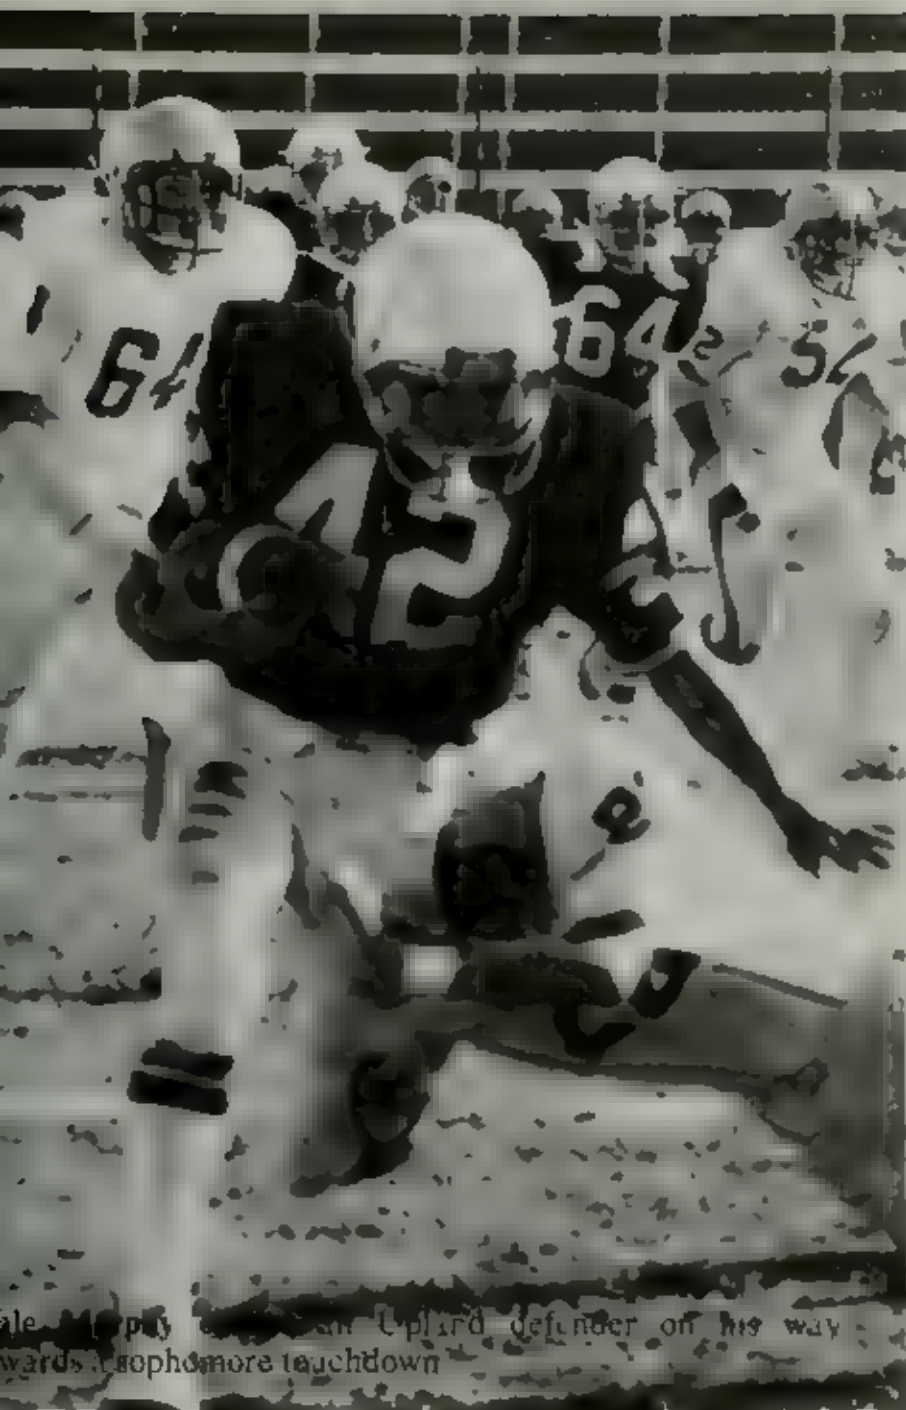

This team, in addition, to the fine sophomores who played on the Varsity Team has a very bright football future on the horizon.

Finishing With a "Bang"

The year started off with a lack of experience, with players coming from different schools. Coaches, Tom Graham, Forrest Anderson, and Ruben Lara, along with captains, Noah Kooiman and George Olive, lead the team through its ups and downs. As the season progressed, the team began to play as a unit. Although the games were not yet turning into wins, the games were much closer and exciting to watch than what the score board revealed.

The final game of the season proved that the young tigers were capable of winning, as they played one of their best and toughest games throughout the 83-84 season, by defeating the Don Lugo Conquistadors, with Noah Kooimans 36 yard field goal. The team pulled together, and by doing so, will hold a promising future.

Talent Is There, Touch Is Not

In the words of the late Vincent Lombardi, "Winning isn't everything, it's the only thing." The Tiger Volleyball team disappointed him in that they lost the "only" thing, but they didn't lose everything.

There is a team beyond the sheet, one with an uncommon togetherness that held them intact through a winless season. The new coach, Laurie Koustic, played an integral part of this togetherness. Captain Becky Patterson had nothing but praise for her coach "She knows the game well, and we were all very proud to have her for a coach."

Co-captain, Jackie Arretche explained, "We had a lot of potential, but because of injuries and lack of experience, we had a difficult season." The team only had three returning players.

Also, four players, including Arretche and Patterson, were injured during the season. Coach Laurie Koustic summed it up in saying, "We were a good team, we just didn't have it all together. We had a lot of first-timers, and it was hard to put a team together with the experienced players injured."

IF ONLY SPIRIT COULD MOVE MOUNTAINS

JV Volleyball Coach, Lindsey J. Hunt, said of his team, "It was their spirit that kept them going." And that was a fact. However their overflowing spirit, was not enough to offset their inexperience, as most of the team were freshman. Their overall record, 2-12, does not do them justice. They began the season with a string of strong efforts, notably against St. Lucy's and Claremont.

The Varsity Basketball Team was young and inexperienced, but still they played with a lot of poise throughout the season. With Rodney Thomas as the only returning letterman, first year coach Wayne Carlson and assistant coach, Bill Sharp knew they had their work cut out for them.

Led by senior forward Rodney Thomas an offensive and defensive threat, the Tigers played most Baseline League rivals close which made for exciting games. Rounding out the small, inexperienced team were 3 seniors; David Otua'i, Paul Mendoza, and John Campbell, and 5 juniors; John Donaldson, Dan Christian, Donny Brubaker, Ron Scheenstra, and Marc Buck.

The turbulent Tiger season was a little longer than everyone had expected, but still the Tigers proved they could play with the best, despite a losing season.

Sometimes there is no adequate way to describe a game won by the JV Boys Basketball Team. No matter the adjectives or creative phrasing it doesn't always do the feat justice. Still, we try.

To fully appreciate the artistry of some of their games, you have to had seen them. Again and again. With standouts such as #32, Cedric Thomas, #22, Scott Stark, and #30, Lavander Charleston, the team's talent seems almost immeasurable. A combination of an aggressive offense and a swarming defense led the team to an explosive season.

Endurance is the Name of the Game

"Perfection makes perfect," a old but still true statement. The sophomore basketball team has adopted this statement, practicing long and hard hours every day. Laps around the court, sprints, and push-ups were just some of the conditioning exercises. Different plays, shooting drills, fast breaks, and free throw practice was what the team did best as a unit. Unity was of utmost importance, which was the end result of their success.

Perfection was a goal to the players, and even though it was a team effort, a few players practiced to perfection, such as Joe Porter, Eric Stager, and Ken Oliver.

Teamwork Leads to Team Unity

Coach Phil Robertson uses time to Teamwork was the main perspective of the Freshmen Basketball Team. They functioned as a single unit, working in perfect harmony throughout their games. Despite minor problems at the beginning of the season, they fought back to a well-earned final record.

Coach Phil Robertson played a major part in keeping his team working as a unit. His coaching also influenced outstanding players such as Mike Medina, Tim Teagle, and Jerry Ferguson. The freshmen players still needed to gain some experience, but will be a promising asset for future teams.

A Feeling of Success

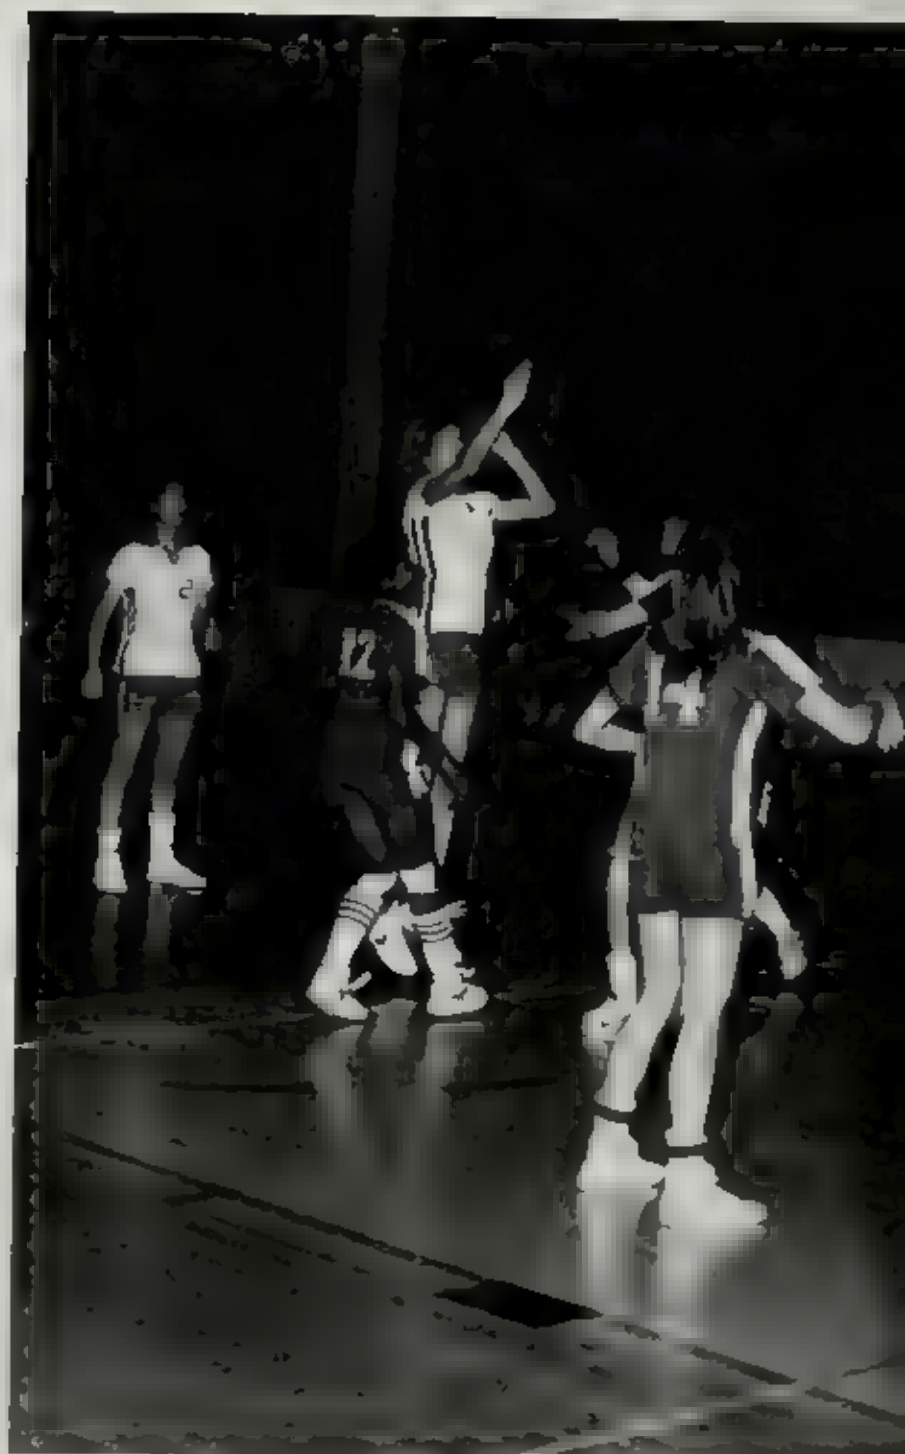

Throughout the 1983-84 season the Girls' Varsity Basketball team, coached by Joe Reynaga, was one of the most feared teams to come along in a while. With Tawanna Terry as the leading scorer and rebounder, the team was in good hands. Guards, Denna Mulverhill and Bridget Ealy, provided the team with the defensive strength that was needed. They also provided strong shooting and assists. Returning letterman Jackie Arrectche and Sharon Allbritton were definitely a threat at the forward position. Aside from a few mishaps at the beginning of the season, the team held together to have a strong and successful year.

The Girls' J.V. basketball season was one which contained many ups and downs. Altogether it was a good season, something the final standings did not seem to show. The team posed a threatening offense with starting forwards, Linda Carroll and Denise Martinez. Defensively, Tina Arrectche, Laura Verret, and Sara Hunt were a difficult to get around. The J.V. team was a holding place for the younger players who were awaiting a chance to prove themselves for the varsity team. The J.V. team should prove to be a dominating factor in future varsity years.

Team Spirit Did Not Pull Through

Jumping for a headball can be a pushy situation, shown here by Ronni Cespedes.

"If everybody stays healthy and breaks go our way, we'll do it," stated by Coach Herrera, the one comment that predicted the 83-84 Varsity Soccer season. The prediction however, did not turn out as expected, for the players did not stay healthy, and breaks did not go their way. The team entered two tournaments at the beginning of the year, the Wilson tournament which was a first this year and the traditional Damien tournament. While at the Damien tournament, many players, both offensively and defensively, were injured, which stunned the success the team was having. Offensively, Noe Coronado and Favio Martinez were out with a pulled muscle and a bruised back, respectively. Defensively, Vince Piarulli and Paul Wilson were out with a knee injury and a fractured toe, in that order. This hampered the strong defense the team relied upon, which consequently gave up numerous goals. However, thanks to offensive players such as Scott Pearson, Roberto Arredondo, Ronni Cespedes and Lance Johnson, Chaffey became the second highest scoring team in Baseline League.

The season did not turn out as bad as was then expected. Most of the injured players returned, even though few injuries still plagued some players. With the help of the trainer Henry Merkelback, though, all the kinks and bruises were eventually straightened out. As for next year's season, the returnees will have their hands full in preparing for a better and more successful season.

Plans Go as Expected

With plenty of new faces, the 83-84 J.V. soccer season progressed as adequately as any coach could imagine. "The team played well as a unit with less individual skills," claimed Al Noseworthy. By competing early in a Don Lugo tournament the team was able to learn how each other played and was able to find its strengths and weaknesses. "Respect was a necessity and that was something the team showed a log of," explained Scott Johnson, team captain. Practice time was essential and the squad labored long hours through heat and cold to show their determination for a successful and inspiring season. "We started off our season hoping to live up to our own and the coaches' expectations, with a determined attitude," noted Chris VanDuin, team captain.

Frosh/Soph Team Gets a New Start

The soccer program had a bright new addition, the Frosh-Soph team. Under the direction of Coach Ben Lautenslager and assisted by senior Ricky Marquez, the team stressed the fundamentals of the game. This was done in hope of strengthening the overall soccer program. With a strong defense, led by Steve Schulz, David Crampton, Rene Quintanilla, and a more powerful offense, comprised of Pat Hurley, David Chin and Erik Zechlin, the Frosh-Soph team's future looked bright. They put forth their best effort and tested the other teams in the league by playing good, heads up soccer.

The concentration soccer demands is clearly shown on the face of Erik Zechlin as he dribbles the ball.

Feeling the presence of the opponent on his back, John Gonzalez prepares to center the ball.

The Girls' Varsity Soccer Team was a very young one, comprised mainly of freshman and sophomores. The captains, Jackie Bishop and Tawna Maxwell, the only junior and senior, respectively, helped the inexperienced team learn the highly skillful game in order to compete at a high school level. Jenny Collier, M V P., led the team with the most goals which helped the team advance in league. Coach Riley summed the team's progression by stating, "This was a young team which had to develop proper skills necessary for playing the game of soccer. As for next year, these developed skills should produce a winning season."

Reaching for the Top

The Varsity Baseball team was in strong contention for the Baseline League Championship. Led by captains, Bryan Allen, Lenny Gallardo and Tom Hudspeth, the team has been hitting the ball at a record-setting space. Other seniors contributing to a successful season were Steve Brown, Bruce "Boomer" Armbruster, Larry Yoder, Victor Gonzales, John Crampton, James Lange, Jim Gomez, and Eric Brown.

Underclassmen who started for the Varsity were junior Mike King and sophomore Robert Olmos.

J.V.'s Are Triumphant

Discipline, dedication, and a winning attitude are what John Herrera's J.V. baseball team worked and thrived on in the 1984 season. With such players as Chico Garcia, Dennis Johnston, and Rich Williamson, the team was well-provided with a strong and stable backbone with which continuous results were produced. The team was one solid unit in which everybody worked together. Talents such as Tom Martinez as the team's ace third base coach, and pitcher Jessie Galvez with a speedy fast ball and change up, and Scott Stark and Mark Buck who led the team in RBI's Coach Herrera did not have many complaints or lamentations, but he exclaimed, "The program is great, and with the Tiger spirit of winning which is beginning to be implanted once again into the hearts of each player, high hopes and eager sports people will once more believe and support this great school."

They Feel Like Champions

The Freshmen-Sophomore Baseball team had a very good season. Their good hitting and great play at defense became the turning points of their year. With their strong and improving pitching staff of Ron Desomiers and Anthony Montoya who came along quite well, the teams chances of winning the Frosh/Soph Baseline League Title were greatly improved.

The whole year could be summed up in the words of Jim Ballwig who added, "Our coaching staff was a significant factor in turning our team into the champions we feel we are."

The 1984 Varsity Softball Team had a tough act to follow. Last year's league champs were 13-0 in league competition. Due to graduating seniors, losing players to Etiwanda High, grade problems, and work conflicts only four of the nine '83 letter ladies were able to return.

The team captains were Paula Harding and Cathy Serna. New talents behind the returning Becky Patterson and Jackie Bishop were Dena Mulverhill, Nikki Wyson, Tami Colton and Terry Piceno.

"In the beginning ... it was frustrating to come out to practice with twenty girls and observe their lack of skills and knowledge. Overall, the season was exciting and most enjoyable for both the girls and us."

Running Away With It All

Experience and depth; these were two things the Chaffey Boys' Track team had a lot of. Coach David Stauffer, with the aid of three assistant coaches, Charles Hicks, Richard Fellows, and Ron Mitchell, coaxed the best out of his runners, jumpers and throwers.

"We will be competitive this year," stated Stauffer for the 1984 season. "We have a lot more depth and a lot more maturity than we did last year."

He did have some misgivings about the $25 activities fee, stating, "We lost a lot of kids due to the fee." Nevertheless, Stauffer was able to mold the players he had into an efficient machine. These players included shot-putter Chris Parks, sprinters Brian McConnell, Larry Ellison, Billy Wilkerson and Jack Porter, and long distance runner George Fierro and Damon Lopez.

Girls' Track Aims High

The power of Kim LeHor is shown in her jump.

Although the Girls' Track Team lost a few valuable members, the loss was not shown in their competitiveness. The returning members along with the other new talented members started off to a great season.

The team predicted success early in the season. Most of the girls thought the team was just as good if not better than last year's. According to Kim Padger, "I think we have a pretty good chance if we push ourselves."

When asked what makes a good team, a (2 mile) victorious Kim Shea replied, "Practice."

Though much of the team's success was due to the hard-working and determined members, it was unanimous that much of the credit belonged to Coach Arenas. According to Lisa Felix, "He pushes us as far as we can go." But pointing out the other side of her enthusiastic coach, Stephanie Fagan stated, "He has a heart."

Swimming . . . What a Splash

Leading the '84 swim team in experience and talent were Cricket Wilson and Tara Klootwyk.

"There were a lot of new people and a few seemed to show good potential," stated Coach Plyley. Christy Olson did excellent throughout the year and has good potential for the years to come. Cricket Wilson added, "We may be a young, inexperienced team, but at least we gained some experience this year." They stuck it out, putting forth an immeasurable amount of energy in both their meets and practices. Some of them were quiet while others were boisterous, but altogether it seemed to be a fun, progressive experience for all those on the team.

Working Hard and Having Fun

Swimming long hard hours in the Challey 50 meter pool caused the Boys' swim team to deal with cramps from fatigue and the constant eye-burning sensation from the chlorine in the water. With returning coach Margie Plyley, the team was mainly composed of new members, but with the help of some top returning swimmers, the team kept going strong. Top swimmers included Dan Wheelchel in the breast stroke, Mike Manning doing the back stroke and James Morketter in the freestyle. "We had a hard working team and an even harder working coach," commented James Morketter.

Coach Plyley summed up the year by stating, "They had a good, strong, positive attitude toward swimming and the good weather helped the team going."

Swinging Toward Experience

Todd Waters seems to be a little "tight" in his swing.

Being the #2 man on the team, Bill Marsh helped the team in tough competition.

Ron Sheenstra shows power through his backhand.

Experience was what the 83-84 Varsity Tennis Team needed, but did not have enough of. With returning players such as Ron Sheenstra, who was the #1 man for the team last year and one of the top five players in league. And Bill Marsh, who was the #2 man for the team, was a big help for the small team, small in number that is, since there were only 8 players. Another returnee Roland Sandquist, and J.V. players Tim Smith and Todd Waters were also helpful to the team's success in the tough Baseline League. As for the main competitors the league had to offer, Upland and Claremont proved to be troublesome contenders.

Todd Waters, a first year man, stated, "By coming on Varsity early in my high school years, I am playing tough players, but by playing better players, I will become better and learn more which will help me and will make me stronger for my future years. Roland Sandquist claimed, "The team needs to work on the newcomers, but by mixing the doubles teams, we will be able to distribute the needed talent."

Class of 1986, Breaking Out

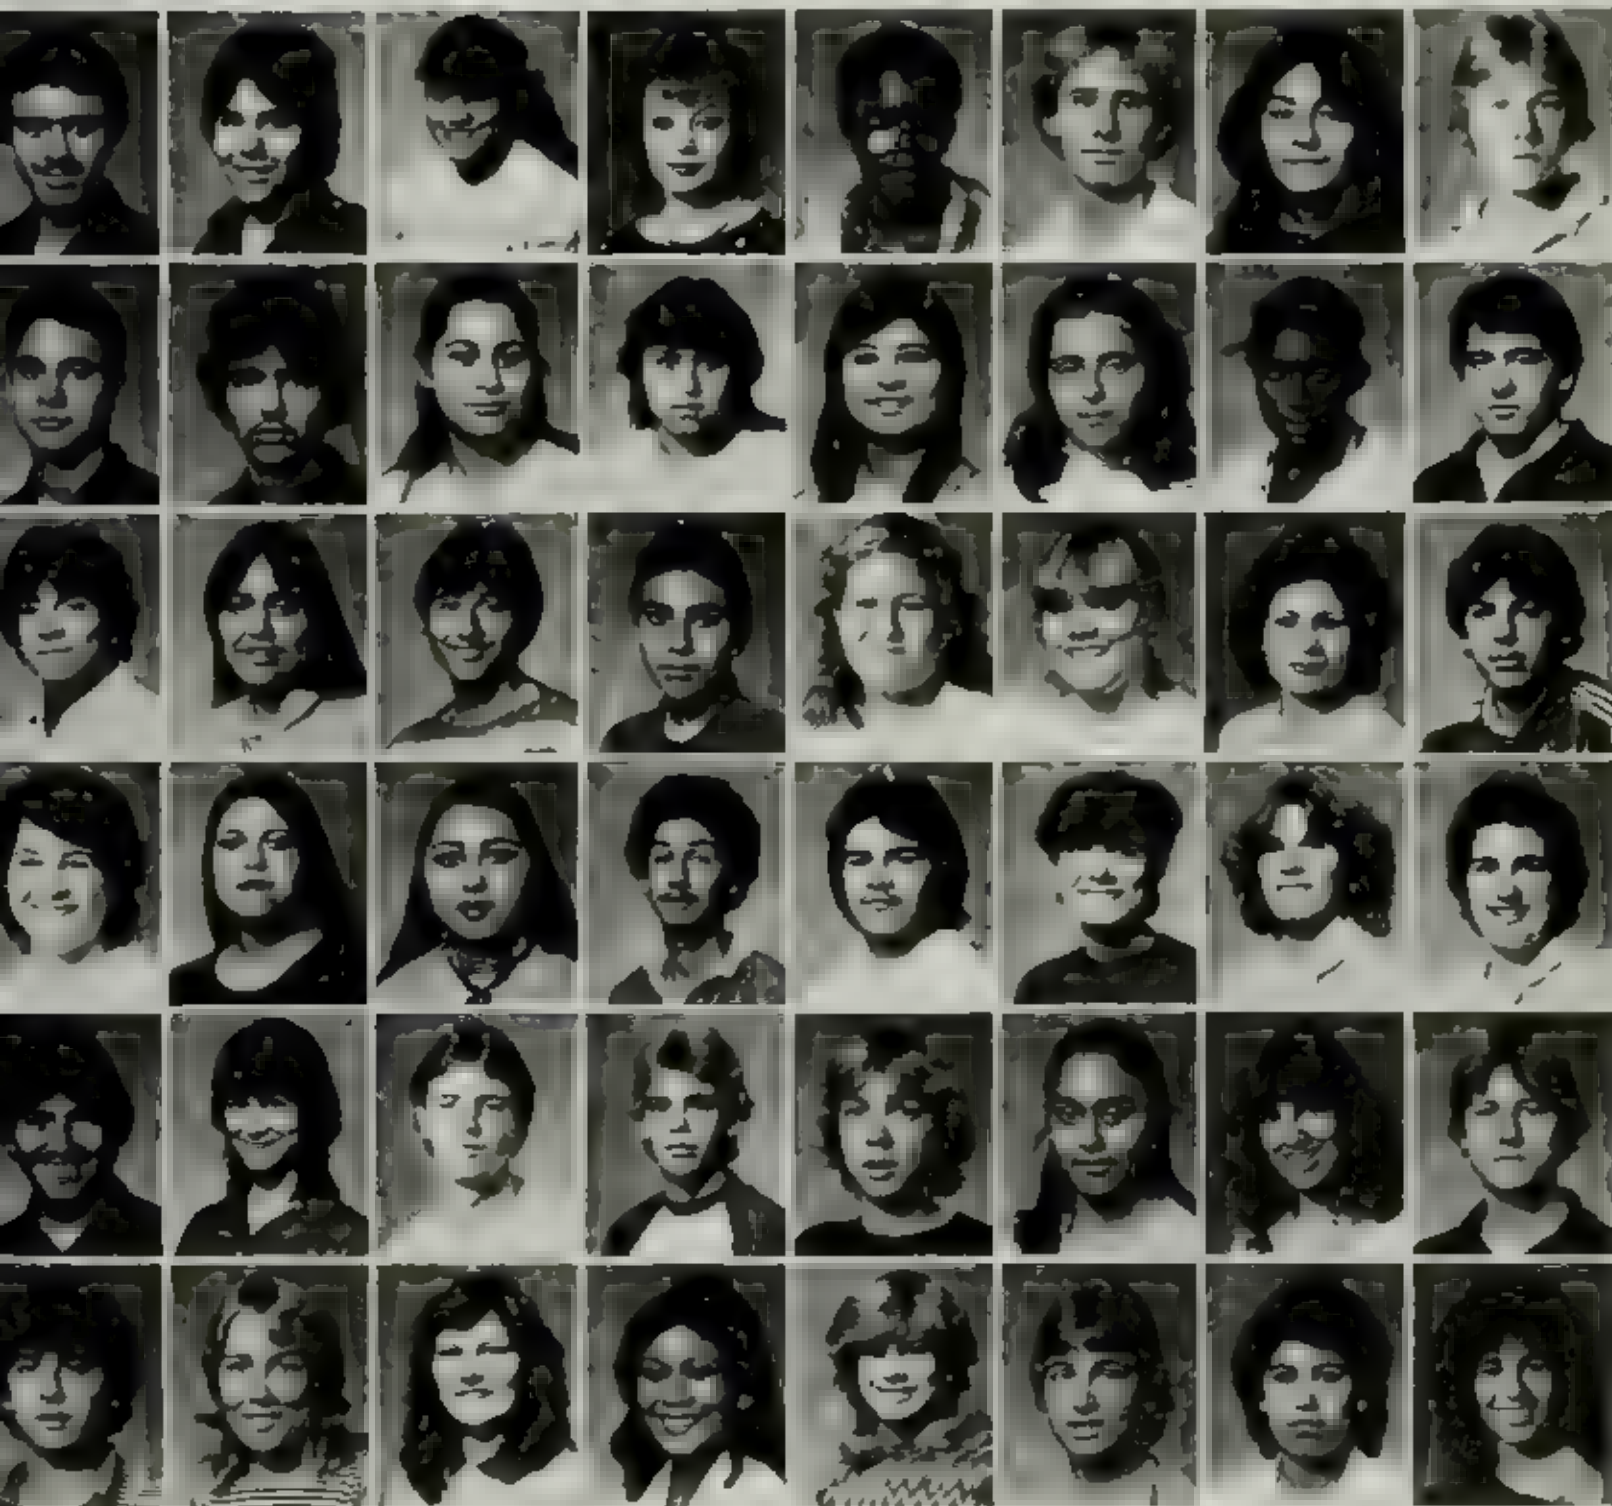

The worst part was over. Success was obvious. The class of 1986 had survived and were going strong!

For the sophomores, the year was not only a time for fitting in, but also a time to break the mold which seemed to produce everyone in the past. Establishing individual style was a big decision. There were many options, but which should be "the one"? Usually it narrowed down to forming cliques with people who held the same interests. These groups were formed by fashions, personalities, and most of all, friendships that would last through the remaining years at Chaffey, and for some, even longer.

With the second year of high school also came a more relaxed atmosphere. Of course, there were required classes, but there were also many new electives to fill in the gaps. Many students found this to be a great time to catch up on cooking skills (or eating), changing a diaper, or rolling in woodchips. All in all, it proved to be fun. It appeared that the worst part was over. Or was it?

'A Symbol of Pride'

At the end of the day, this Chaffey student lets his wand wander, contemplating the empty campus

A figure in stone,
it roars for victory.
A stripe for each win,
For all to see.

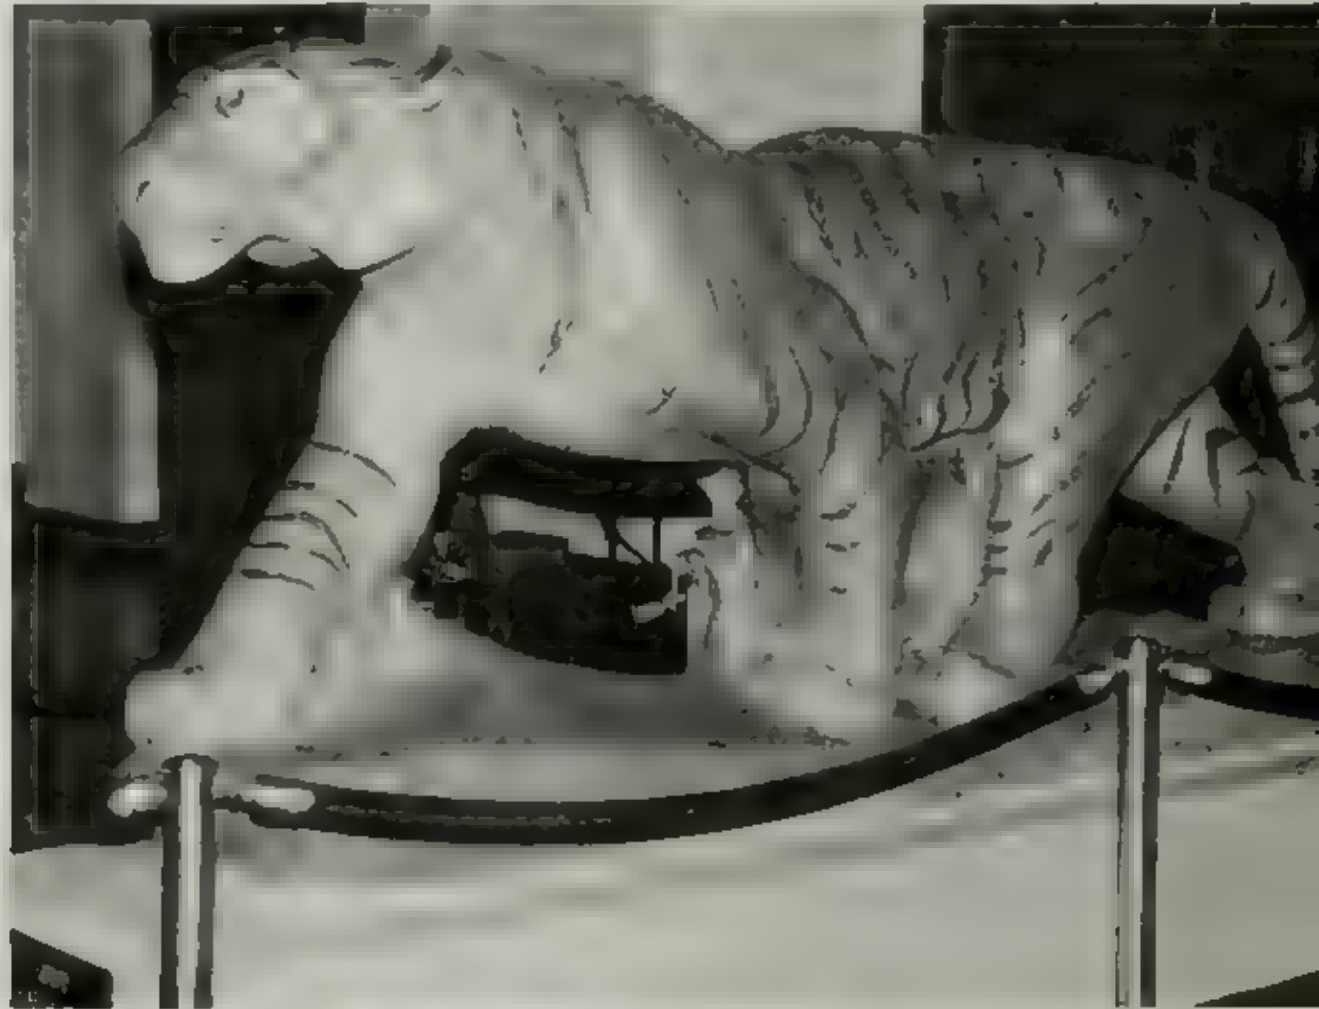

A symbol of spirit,
Its soul never at rest.
A proud spirit,
For its school is the best.

Its figure is strong,
A challenge for time,

Untouched by decay,
Still at its prime.

Protected from envy,
Its greatness revealed.
Bursting with dignity,
Yet its lips stay sealed.

Orange and Black.
A good feeling inside.
Here for one reason,
It stands for pride.

'The Strive to Drive'

At Chaffey, driver's ed. became an elective instead of a required course. It was a sharp curve, but those striving to drive took and completed their course of Driver's Education.

Besides the bad news, learning to drive was still an exciting experience. A license was more than a piece of paper that stated permission of the bearer to operate a motor vehicle, it was a ticket to another world. Students who were once hardworking, enterprising geniuses began to have more freedom to do other things. Parents were never sure where their children would be one moment to the next. Many tried to utilize their child's freedom to their advantage. Not a new driver alive can truthfully say they weren't badgered into picking up little brothers and sisters from school, or going to the grocery store on a mad rush for coffee at least once.

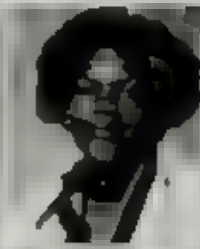

Students found that driving was not all fun and games. Problems arose that weren't even noticed as a pedestrian. Expenses popped up everywhere. Gas money, car repair, and occasional tickets and fines became constant worries for many high school students as well as with their parents. Although it was a tough ride, students did their best and took it in stride.

...ere tears her way into...

A parade of fashion in which each participant

Breaking Away With Fashion

Though not common to Matt Taylor, others found this style their cup of tea expresses herself in her own way

Who would ever believe that fashion would take a turn toward the torn? Well, it did, and it was quite evident at Chaffey this last year. As far as the eye could see, there were rips, tears, and shreds. This style was inspired by the motion picture "Flashdance". This new style in fashion gave the students a chance to express themselves artistically.

Among other fashions came the rapidly growing New Romantic style. Though not too prominent, this group stood-out on campus. Their free-flowing clothes, boots, and scarves comfortably expressed their lifestyle. This group identified with such bands as Duran Duran and Spandau Ballet.

Also evident at Chaffey this past year was the punk look. Chains, leather, denim, and hair that stands out (on end) contributed to this semi-new trend. This long inhabitant of the style-world got a real push this last year. Though quite new to us, this rage has long existed in England. This group identified with such bands as Fear and the Plasmatics

On delivery from England came Mod and Ska. This clique, somewhat new to the campus, could easily be recognized by their dark glasses, derby hats, and trenchcoats. Some bands that helped originate this fad, such as Madness and The Specials, were the inspiration for all the supporters of this group.

These fashions are a few of many that existed at Chaffey. There were others, not as popular, but as stylish as the more evident fads at Chaffey in the year past.

Fashion gave all a sense of freedom and creativity. One could invent new styles or enhance old ones. Either way, fashion was style and style made everyone seem a little more interesting and unique.

Spirit, Pride, and the Color Green

There is no spirit like the spirit of a sophomore. The sophomore spirit was very noticeable during school, football games, and rallies. The sophomores stood with their color held high. The color green was the source of sophomore spirit. It stood for happiness, craziness, and mostly pride. The sophomores didn't care about comments from the other classes because they were proud of their color.

The sophomores had everything. It was almost impossible not to notice the envy of the other classes. First, the class of '86 had Gumby. He attended almost all of the games to "greenly" cheer on the sophomores to another win. Secondly, the class of '86 had each other. Their teamwork and cooperation stood out during the rallies. Finally, and mostly, the class of '86 had spirit — a lot of spirit. And that's what it takes to make a great class. The class of '86 — "greenly" spirited.

This Chaffey student asks the question, "Is it alive?"

Perhaps imagining a far away place, Russel Troutman enjoys a peaceful lunch

Class of 1987; Breaking In

Freshmen knew it wouldn't be easy, and it wasn't! The Chaffey campus seemed incredibly huge with its many buildings and numerous students. At times it seemed finding your way to class would be a dream come true, and it seemed a familiar face would never be seen.

Different surroundings came as a slight shock for some . . . to others it brought a feeling of adventure. To help overcome these feelings there were numerous activities, clubs, and organizations to get in which to be involved. There was something for everyone at Chaffey.

Being a freshman was not a question of to swim or not to-swim, it was a do or die situation. Along with the requirements of passing a standard swim test, the class of 1987 was also faced with other subjects such as the dreaded intro to P.E., social studies, intro to composition, and some type of math. These classes were required of the freshman as they were to all of the previous classes during their first year . . . and what a load it was to carry!

With all of the schoolwork also came the task of trying to establish a little social status. Having an older brother or sister was definitely a help in adjusting, but if this wasn't the case, there would be quite a bit of work to do. After all, they knew it wouldn't be easy . . .

We Are Alive!!!

"Eighty-seven, Eighty-seven," was heard over and over again at football games, rallies, and other activities. This was more than just a new year and new faces because the class of '87 was louder than ever before. The freshman got into the swing of things by yelling, wearing their class color and participating in class competitions. They may not have won at rallies or spirit night, but they made sure everyone knew they were the class of '87 and that they were there.

Melody Weaver and friends seem to have their minds on something other than school

Freshmen show their spirit at the last football game

Although the freshman class was strong in participation and spirit, some freshman, like Russell Small, thought, "We have a lot of participation, but still need more," while another student was more optimistic and said, "Everyone was going to regret trying to compete with the class of 1987." This was almost true because the freshman class spirit was going strong.

The first rally was probably the weakest the class of '87 had, but once the freshman caught on to what was happening, they got stronger and louder, and as the year progressed, they made themselves known. You can't say they didn't put in their best trying to win because they did have spirit.

A grid of 56 black and white portrait photographs of students, arranged in 7 rows and 8 columns. The portraits show students of various ethnicities and ages, likely high school or college students, from the mid-20th century. The students are posed in a formal, head-and-shoulders style. The grid is organized as follows:
Row 1: 8 portraits of students with various hairstyles, including long hair and short cuts.
Row 2: 8 portraits of students, some with bangs and others with longer hair.
Row 3: 8 portraits of students, including one with glasses.
Row 4: 8 portraits of students, showing a variety of facial features and expressions.
Row 5: 8 portraits of students, with some having short, dark hair.
Row 6: 8 portraits of students, including one with a prominent nose.
Row 7: 8 portraits of students, with some having short, dark hair and others with longer hair.
The overall quality of the images is grainy, typical of older film photography. The students are dressed in casual to semi-formal attire of the era.

Getting Places the Freshman Way

Many freshmen found they had to travel much longer distances to get to school and consequently, many found themselves riding a crowded bus to school. For others, it was walking or riding a bike. Some students like Terri Pestel, who commented, "My mother takes turns driving me and my best friend to school," relied on their parents. While others got rides from friends, brothers, or sisters with cars.

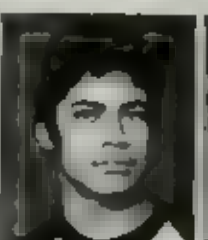

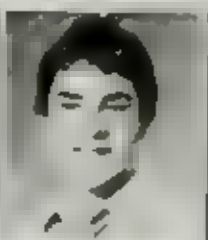

Getting around in general was often more difficult than getting to school. Many freshmen found waiting until their parents could fit them into their schedule was the only way of getting around. This often meant they had to change their plans. Others made use of the Omni Bus or good old "pedal power" to get around.

Whether it was getting to school or getting around in general, every freshmen was waiting for the day when he would not have to depend on others for transportation.

king around campus, Olive Oil, alias Johanna ams, seems to have Popeye on her mind

For many freshman the thought of beginning the school year in a completely different environment brought out fears of being lost and alone on a gigantic campus filled with many unfamiliar faces. The first few weeks were spent strictly close to those friends from junior high. One freshman, Deanna Scheyver commented, "It's confusing to look around you and see so many different people and not know really how or where you fit in or if you do at all."

As time went by meeting new friends got easier and the school that the freshman at one time thought of as gigantic became smaller. The unfamiliar faces they once saw became faces of new friends. The fears they had were replaced by a warm feeling of fitting in.

Computermania!

With computers invading almost every type of business and industry, students realized computer knowledge was a must in order to get by in today's world. Despite cutbacks in funds, Chaffey was able to offer a variety of computer classes. Computer literacy, computer programming, and computer science were among the classes offered.

The computer programming class taught by Mrs. Peters, was revised in the spring of eighty-three to use Chapter 1 machines (machines bought with Chapter 1 funds). The students worked with the TRS-80 computer, converting tests into multiple choice, and making up tests from the text book. The programs, once completed, were checked for spelling and correct answers before being used by basic level math and social studies classes as reviews.

Many inquisitive Chaffey students found the computer classes were a good way to get acquainted with basic computer knowledge.

A grid of 56 black and white student portraits arranged in 7 rows and 8 columns. Each portrait shows a young person, likely a high school or college student, with various hairstyles and clothing typical of the late 1960s or early 1970s. The portraits are arranged in a uniform grid, with each individual occupying a square frame. The subjects are diverse in appearance, with some having short, dark hair and others having longer, wavy hair. The background of each portrait is a solid, light color, making the subjects stand out. The overall composition is a formal, organized display of student portraits.

Eight Minutes and Counting

Monica Smoll expresses delight at attending Chaffey High school.

Speed was an important factor whenever the passing bell rang. The eight minutes between classes had to be used wisely in order to avoid being late. Those that were near their next class had time left over to talk to friends or sit down and quickly review for an upcoming test.

Being late was a problem for many students making the long journey from business to math/science. This required walking at a quick pace in order to allow for time spent waiting to ascend the stairs.

With lockers no longer available to Chaffey students, the old jammed locker routine could not be used as an excuse for tardiness. Because the tardy policy was strictly enforced by many teachers, most students found it to be to their advantage to get to class on time.

Although the Freshman Cabinet was only in existence second semester, they were able to get a lot accomplished. They began the new semester by sponsoring an after game dance on February 3. The dance featured the band, Extended Play, and a break-dancing contest. The money from their major fund raiser was used to buy decorations for the class rallies. They were also able to start looking ahead by setting up a fund for their senior activities.

Working Behind the Scenes

Mr. Hocking has been teaching at Chaffey for 21 years. According to Mr. Hocking, that makes him old enough to drink and gives him plenty reason to! Of course, he was only kidding. During his years at Chaffey Mr. Hocking has sponsored a few clubs and has progressed the position of English Department Chairman. This title has seemed to place him more into "behind the scenes" jobs such as working with the Principal's Council and also the school's curricular development program. Unfortunately, these activities pull him further and further away from the students.

Aside from his teaching, Mr. Hocking is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and spends time working with the science club in an attempt to promote the preservation of the environment as well as the human race. He also enjoys backpacking and traveling.

Mr. Hocking is definitely a man who is working for the better of the Chaffey students as well as for himself and others around him. All in all, he has proven to be a wonderful man in many ways.

"Life is A Daring Adventure"

In his 14 years here at Chaffey, Mr. Reeves has had to learn to adapt to his environment. His innate talents have helped him to evolve as one of Chaffey's favorite teachers. Mr. Reeves and his dog Spud can often be found frolicking in the native plant area, drifting down a river, climbing Half Dome, or gliding over the slopes. Mr. Reeves is a man who possesses many talents, and enjoys stretching them to their outer limits. His motto is, "Life is a daring adventure, or nothing at all."

Teaching is not only a career for him, but it is way of life. He enjoys the opportunity to spread scientific knowledge to the youth of our school. When asked what he enjoys most about teaching, Mr. Reeves replied, "I especially enjoy the opportunity to acquaint kids with the natural world. There is much to be learned from the outdoors."

Giving to Others

Mr. Wasserman has pledged nineteen years of his life to teaching at Chaffey High School. Receiving his degree at Ohio State University, Mr. Wasserman went on to become a post graduate at the University of Maryland in England. He also spent four years in the Air Force in England and Germany.

Mr. Wasserman's main hobby is hiking — especially along beaches at low tide. He also believes he is an expert cook. He specializes in the "perfect German pizza."

Mr. Wasserman was the advisor for A.F.S. for 1966 and 1967. He also started the education scholarship program around 1976.

Ed Wasserman was influenced by priests and nuns at St.

Joseph's who challenged him to tutor students they couldn't get through to in math. After accomplishing his goals as a tutor, he was challenged to make teaching his career. Mr. Wasserman was also influenced by field work on the Sioux Indian Reservation near Chamberlain, South Dakota and Fr. Flanagan's Boys Town near Omaha, Nebraska.

Mr. Wasserman believes that the greatest joy and happiness of life is giving to others. His favorite quote is: "How far you go in life depends on your being tender with the young, compassionate with the aged, sympathetic with the striving, and tolerant of the weak and strong. Because someday in life you will have been all of these."

Mr. Frederick Johnson came to us with a most interesting background, and it was hard for us to believe he had kept it hidden for all of his twenty-seven years here at Chaffey.

Mr. Johnson spent grades one through nine, with the exception of fourth, in a log cabin not far from his Wyoming ranch house where for most of those years he was the only student. When his sophomore year arrived, he attended school in town until the outbreak of World War II. Knowing that he would soon be drafted, Mr. Johnson pushed to graduate a year early and enrolled in eight regular classes and also took four correspondence courses offered through the University of Wyoming.

In the fall of 1946, after receiving an honorable discharge from the army, Mr. Johnson entered the University of Wyoming. He graduated with honors four years later with a B.A. in foreign languages and English. He then began teaching at a small school in Wyoming which housed kindergarten through twelfth grade, two years later he married.

In 1957 Mr. Johnson, his wife, and his baby son packed up and moved to Ontario, California, where he accepted an offer to teach at Chaffey High School.

Outside of school, Mr.

Johnson enjoys the outdoors, especially the wilderness. He and his wife spend three months each year in a log cabin in Wyoming which Mr. Johnson built himself some thirty years ago.

In closing, Mr. Johnson stated, "My years at Chaffey have been a great joy to me and I am extremely grateful to have had the opportunity to associate with so many talented and considerate young adults."

Nelzo the Clown

Mr. Nelson Palmer has been actively involved in the Performing Arts Department throughout his 25 years at Chaffey. He has enjoyed writing and directing many of the "Holiday Fling" skits and various other productions.

As a graduate of Whitter College with a degree in speech and drama, he decided to become a teacher because of several teachers whom he had admired.

In his spare time, Mr. Palmer started a balloon vending company which he runs during the summer. Dressed up as Nelzo the Clown, he sells balloons at the auctions in Colton and Chino. As Nelzo, he enjoys dealing with little children.

Mr. Palmer offered this advice to Chaffey students: "Give your high school career your best shot so that you won't look back later and have regrets."

Chaffey Administration

"You really have to like people," answered Dr. Fred Adams when asked what his job takes. He also said that his term at Chaffey has been the greatest experience of his life and he's enjoyed each one.

"There is always something that has to be done," stated Assistant Principal Phil Gossweiler. Although he has only been head of activities for two years, he has achieved much. "90% of my job is public relations."

"This job allows me to use my skills to make Chaffey a better place," explained Assistant Principal John Mendoza. His job is to control the discipline of the school. This includes heading the guidance department and the proctors. Although it seems a hard job he says, "I can only do the best job I can."

The true personalities of the secretaries would shock most Chaffey students.

When it came to doing their jobs, all three secretaries were in agreement, that is, they agreed there was "never a dull moment." Kate Bradford described her office as, "Busy, but with a good staff to work with." Adele Vinciguerra, Mr. Gosswiller's secretary, assertively described her job as, "One of the most positive jobs on campus you have to want to have fun, because that's what student activities are all about."

Because their offices were often busy, Jean Neault, Mr. Mendoza's secretary, affirmed, "You have to be able to handle a lot of details at the same time." While Cathy Brock, Dr. Adams' secretary, admitted, "You have to be a person who likes people." Secretaries are a support source. Although the students often took them for granted, they did not mind. Kate Bradford summed it up best by saying, "You'd give them more value if they weren't there."

"Look, Mom, no braces," gleams Adele Vinciguerra.

Penny

Lane

On February 29th four young men came to Chaffey, each one representing a member of the greatest band of all time, the Beatles. Although not the Beatles, three brothers Dave, Jim, and Vic Campanaro and their drummer, Joe Cintorino created a tribute to the Beatles as Penny Lane.

Playing twice that day, once during a second period assembly and again that night, Penny Lane was more than welcome at Chaffey. The group took their audiences through a nostalgic tour of the Beatles' era. They began with the early music, like "She Loves You" and "Love Me Do." After changing into their ornate Sgt. Pepper's costumes, the excitement of that era gripped the crowd. The audience never subsided throughout their performance of "Strawberry Fields," "A Little Help From My Friends" and "Lucy in the Sky." Polishing off the production were the songs of the Beatles' final era, including: "Let It Be" and "Come Together."

As the performance was at its end, screams of "Twist and Shout" brought the foursome out for an encore of that song. Despite the excited screams, Penny Lane and Manager Vince Campanaro made a clean getaway and arrived safely in Santa Barbara for their next performance.

Dear Student Body,

We would like to take this opportunity to wish you all the best. To the freshmen, may we wish you all fond years at Chaffey. To the sophomores, continued success in all you do. May all the juniors celebrate the greatest senior year ever. And, to the seniors, the best of luck throughout the rest of your lives. May you achieve all your goals.

We realize that this yearbook has its share of mistakes, no yearbook is without them. We hope you realize that putting together the Fasti is no easy job. We strive hard to catch misspelling and misplacing of names, but we can't get them all. We sincerely hope that you enjoy your 1983-84 Fasti, now and always.

Hey Bay-bee,
 My my, my. 'Havent been an eventful year. Physics the first semester, you dont know how smart you were to get out when you did!
 And "Fastly" what fun. I really like your ~~Queen~~ layout Its fine. Next year was a lot of promise we are all so popular you cant see in Activities Boxed with all in popular people and me - who - won. Tyler's found his home with these concerts and promotions all the sudden I am a woman, mums and spurs 256 Closing we have a companion a great thing we are still popular but we should get medals for what we see you at the God bless! well this year was definitely an experience!

we had a lot of fun just driving around being our crazy selves! I don't exactly understand why we all wore afters from each other, you guys know off from me) but I hope that we will always be good friends!

Ooh, we did weird things, our weekly walks in the park were fun too! Remember the party with "suzyle som"? That was a blast! I love to make fun of her!

well kid, have a superb ^{Junior} ~~year~~ year, & don't work too hard! And please learn to type! KO!

Love ya lots,
Mom

Ray,
you were so rude to me sometimes, but I guess we'll forgive you this time. I'm sure you have loads of fun stuff
on the C&O/faculty take care
I know better!
Love, Rachelle

I love Ray Darling
 It's me Joan, sex goddess.
 I hope you are truly overwhelmed with the thought of me actually writing in your book, well we did put it together our book! I'm so glad that we got to know each other this year. Justi was a blast! I hope you have a great time next year. I'm advertising all that you know, all you know, all by the way. You're a real doll and you better come to San Diego to visit with the rest of the flake. Take care of yourself.

Hey Ray,
 Hi-ya, baby! Smash - this year was gone by so fast. Seems like only yesterday I sat down in history for the first time, scared of everyone who said "Boo" to me. So much has happened since I came here in September - I can't even remember it all. We've had good times and bad, but we made it through okay - and are even better for the future. Years and years from now if you even look back and say "who is this - Jammie?" don't look up my I.D. picture. Look up the VESC and French club group pictures, Ray? I hope to be here next year, but I don't know for sure. If I'm not, then do me a favor. Don't forget me right away. Think of all the good times we had. Okay? I don't know what the summer holds in store, but I hope we can do quite a bit together. I don't think I'll ever forget you, Ray. Nor will I ever forget Tyler, Angie, Candace, Wendy, or Alina, either. Well, now that I've thoroughly bored you, I'll end this here.
 Ray,
 Why did you get out of physics? We had a good time. You sit so far across the room from me, what can I say? We could have been better friends, but we still have a way of making our own fun. Stay in G.A.T.E. or we won't have glasses together. You Jammie! (I don't know) You're so nice. I'll miss you, kind of, but maybe we'll get together this summer with Tyler and Angie.
 Take care.
 Have a great summer.
